Telstat Electronics Inc. is a manufacturing company involved in research/development, production design/engineering and production/manufacturing of emergency response systems. "Apello" is a personal emergency response system designed for seniors and live alones who are at risk in a medical situation and need to be able to call for help at the touch of a button. The Staff Security System is designed to provide extra protection to individuals who work alone in areas of large institutions. Suitable marketing channels for their products are through foreign distributors.
