

executor has. An administrator's duties and liabilities are precisely the same as those of an executor, so that it is unnecessary to refer to them again.

A codicil is a supplement or addition made to a will by the testator, to be taken as part of the same, being intended for its explanation or alteration, or to make some addition to, or subtraction from, the former disposition of the testator. It should be executed in the same manner and with the same formality as the original will.

No precise form of words is essential to the validity of a will; but great care should be taken that the wishes of the testator are clearly expressed in proper terms.

Wills are revoked by the marriage of the testator or testatrix, and by subsequent wills and codicils, so far as such subsequent wills and codicils are inconsistent or incompatible with the original will.
