LIFE OF VERGIL.

Publius Vergilius Maro¹ was born on the fifteenth of Birth. October, B.C. 70, in the first consulship of M. Licinius Crassus and Cn. Pompeius, at Andes, (now Pirtola), a small village near Mantua. Since the full franchise was not given to this part of Gaul (Gallia Transpadana) till some years afterwards², the poet, like many of his predecessors and contemporaries in literature, was not a Roman, but an Italian provincial.²

The parents of Vergil, like those of Horace, were of His parents, obscure birth. Some authorities say that the poet's father was a potter, others, that he was a brickmaker, while others again assert that he was the servant of a travelling merchant, Magius, whose daughter, Magia Polla, he afterwards married. Whatever may have been his occupation, certain it is, that he was at the time of the poet's birth, the steward, factor, or possessor of an estate near Mantua. The childhood of Vergil was passed amid the hills and weds that fringed the verdant banks of the Mincius, and the carly association of the poet with the lovely scenery in the neighborhood of his native town may account for the exquisite touches of pastoral life which is so well depicted in the Eclogues and the Georgics.

&#x27;Every Roman citizen had regularly three names—denoting the individual, the gens or clan, and the familia. Thus in Publius Vergilius Maro, Publius is the praenomen, marking the individual; Vergilius is the nomen, denoting the gens or clan; while Maro is the cognomen, or family name. Sometimes an agnomen was added for honorary distinction, as Africanus to Scipio, Numidicus to Metellus. The original form of the name was Vergilius; Virgilius was not common till the middle ages.
