To this, Hon. J. A. Calder replied that the work of the Ottawa department was increasing. Officials had to be maintained at the border. The immigration problem, Mr. Calder declared, would never be settled if Canada pursued a niggardly policy. pursued a niggardly policy.
Salaries of Judges

Hon. Arthur Meighen stated in reply to Mr. J. H. Sinclair that there were 36 senior judges in the province of Ontario, including four vacant judgeships and 24 junior judges. The salery was $3,000 each, except in York county, where $3,500 is paid. He said there were seven county count judges county, where $3,500 is paid. Coming From the States

Hon. J. A. Calder, minister of immisgration, said there had been a marked increase in the work of the Ottawa office. In addition to bringing people in, there had been the duty imposed of watching the border. He thought there was very little chance of getting many people from Europe in the ting many people from Europe in the near future. Careful Direction.

Canada, he expected, would have 25,-000,000 of people in 1950. If British sentiment was to prevail there must be careful direction. At the same time honest censure was a patriotic duty. He advocated a ministry of health, and thought there should be no delay in carrying out reforms. Among his other proposals was one to take the tariff out of politics by means of a joint commission of farmers and manufacturers. Great Britain was abandoning free trade, he said. Labor can only make protection effective for themselves by the adoption of the principle which enables the work of production to take place in Canada.

He would tax all luxuries, establish a faculty of commerce in the universities: improve trade relations by having competent trade consuls representing Canada; improve political standards by compelling the publication of all campaign subscriptions; this would save some people subscribing twice, he said, and political slackers must get the same treatment as military slackers.
