ARCHITECTS WOULD REVISE NEW BYLAW AS SUBMITTED

Declare Provisions for Wall Thicknesses and Space Area Are Prohibitive to Building.

"The architects are up in arms against the new building bylaw, of which a draft has just been issued. Not only are the architects indignant over what they claim to be most unreasonable provisions and restrictions, but the proposed builders of warehouses and manufacturing institutions are also greatly worked up over what they look upon as a direct block to their building."

These were the statements of Edmund Burke at the conclusion of a meeting of the Ontario Association of Architects yesterday afternoon, to protest against the regulations contained in the new building bylaw as compiled by City Architect McCallum. One of the chief exceptions taken is to the section which provides for the space area in all walls. The bylaw permits of only 35 per cent. area. The architects ask that this be increased to 50 per cent. or over. They declare that the lesser area is quite impracticable for warehouses and manufacturing establishments. The manufacturers would not submit to having only this limited space to admit of light.

Walls Too Thick.

Objection is also taken to the required thickness of the walls. If a wall is to be built with a 50 per cent. area, its thickness would have to be 2 ft. 3 in. at the top. That would mean that the lower parts of the wall would have to be increased sufficiently to hold these walls. And if a wall is over 100 feet long it would have to be increased four more inches in thickness at the top.

After a great deal of discussion in condemnation of the bylaw, as the draft indicates it to be, the meeting passed the following resolution:

That the minimum wall thickness may be 14 inches, and where that minimum is exceeded it should be thickened proportionately; that the chief requirement should be calculated on the basis of their carrying power, rated on a certain number of tons per required feet of area, and that where walls are built with a proportion of Portland cement, a certain rebate be allowed in the thickness.

Committee Would Revise.

It was then decided that a committee, consisting of Messrs. Burke, Ray, Pearson, Denison, and Wickson, be appointed to draft a revision of the bylaws and present them to the city council, with a request that they be used in the stead of the regulations so corrected. The deputation will wait upon the council on Monday next.

Those present were: John Pearson, S H Townsend, C J Gibson, F Baker, J C L Harwood, A R Denison, W R Gregg, A H Gregg, W R Strickland, Robert Rae, H C Moore, Ford Howland, Ralph J Wilson Grey, J P Heintz and John Gimmell, and J Chadwick.

According to Architect Denison, the Brock and Dignum & Moneypeny firms will not rebuild if they have to comply, the increased thickness of the walls making an increased cost for masonry of 50 per cent., and for other construction work, as well as sacrificing land.

"The better class of architects will be with me," said Mr. McCallum, city architect, yesterday in discussing the opposition.

"I did not make those bylaws hap-hazard,' he added, "but have precedent for all standards I have set up. When these bylaws go into effect it will not be possible for an architect to put up a 9-inch wall where he should build a 14-inch wall. He will simply have to erect a building which will be absolutely safe in every particular, and more than that I am not asking."

A slight error had been made in the bylaws as he had presented them, but this was the only point he would concede. The openings in the top three storeys of any building of not more than 25 per cent. of the area of the wall, he intended to be 35 per cent., and this would apply also to three-storey buildings.

In the case of the thickness of walls below the top three storeys an allowance of 25 per cent. for openings without adding to the thickness of the walls was a liberal one.

RALPH SMITH AROUSED.

Ottawa, May 13.—(Special.)—Ralph Smith of Vancouver will enquire if the government has any information on the subject of the proposed imperial labor bureau to be established by the Salvation Army for the purpose of placing homeless and helpless people where they are needed in the colonies, as outlined in the Canadian press. A cablegram was published to-day, in which W. T. R. Preston describes the movement as "a magnificent project." Mr. Smith wants to know what authority Mr. Preston had for endorsing the scheme; what class of people the scheme covers, and, finally, will ask: "Is Canada to be made the dumping ground for the drunken and immoral classes of the old country, or for their children, if the proposed scheme goes into effect?"

Tuesday week will be empire day, and when the house adjourns next Friday night, it will not meet again until Wednesday afternoon.

Twenty Houses Burned.

Montreal, May 13.—(Special.)—Shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon, a fire broke out in a block of residences in St. Margaret-street, St. Henri, and before the firemen could get the flames under control some twenty small houses of the block had been destroyed. The loss will fall upon about twelve proprietors and three families have been made homeless. The loss will be heavy, as the houses were only partly insured.

At the Y.M.C.A. Convention.

Buffalo, N.Y., May 13.—An important quotation of polity was decided at to-day's sessions of the thirty-fifth international convention of the Young Men's Christian Association. Those who favored taking the power of dealing with the railroads for the railroad Y.M.C.A.'s from the international committee, and placing it with the state and local committees, were defeated by a large majority.

Bristol, Vt., May 13.—It appears to-night that E. L. Wentz left a will executed only a few days previous to his death, in which he leaves his entire fortune to Mrs. D. B. Wentz, wife of the brother with whom he was so closely associated. The report that the will bears a date only a few days prior to his tragic death lends color to the theory of suicide.

LET STATE OWN PHONES

said, to be found in Sweden. On that system one could talk between places distant as Ottawa from Montreal for from four to eight cents. It now costs $1.75 to talk for five minutes between Ottawa and Toronto by the Bell system.

Baulked by the Bell.

"I know farmers all over this country," continued Mr. Maclean, "who would build independent lines if they thought they could get connection with the trunk line and railway station. But so far the law is such that the Bell Company is entrenched in a position that makes it a monopolist of this important service. Not only do I wish to remove this monopoly, but I wish also to see something substituted for it on the lines of state ownership. It would cost but a small amount of money, and that it can be made profitable is a certainty. A national service can be given for one-half of what is charged to-day, and the revenues will still provide a sinking fund that in twenty years will extinguish the debt, as is being done in Sweden. That being the case, why should we delay? I suppose it will be said that it is in the direction of socialism. But that kind of socialism, I take it, is good for the country. It has proven successful everywhere it has been tried; even in Canada, where the trial has been made, the results have been most satisfactory. The City of Toronto is ready, and I appeal to the representatives of that city to say if I am not right, to municipalize the Bell system, to buy out that system at a fair value, if taking it over we can get the use of the trunk lines.

"The position is somewhat the same in Ottawa to-day. There is an unfortunate condition of affairs here. Two companies are applying for the franchise. Nobody believes in rival telephone services in a town except when no other remedy is possible. It is well to have one system. It is better to have that system municipalized; but it is best of all to have it run in the interest of the municipalities and the government together. Here is a progressive measure, the carrying out of which will cost very little money and one on which I intend, a little later on, to take the opinion of the house. As for telegraphs, the government of every country in Europe almost has made an enormous success in nationalizing this system, mainly in connection with the postoffice. They have cut the rates in two, doubled the number of words allowed for a fixed fee, extended the mileage, opened telegraph offices in every postoffice and in every little hamlet where the private companies refused to operate, and withal have made the system financially successful.

What It Will Do.

"Public ownership will give every farmer in Canada a telephone in his house at $8 or $10 a year, and he cannot get it to-day for less than from $40 to $100. I know cases where farmers have been asked from $100 to $150 a year for connection with the Bell Telephone service. If we can give every farmer in Canada who desires it a telephone in his house for $8 a year and business men in towns and cities a telephone at $20 a year, as they have in other countries, let us try to do it. A progressive government would have take nthis question up long ago. The P. M. G., who was following what the heads of other postal systems in other countries have taken up long ago, should have dealt with this matter. The minister of justice, who had promised to give relief with regard to the telephone situation, if he had studied the situation and desired to keep his pledge, would have brought in a bill long ago curing these grievances either on the line of a general act regulating the telephone system or by an act making the telegraphs and telephones the property of the state. In view of the fact that all these grievances do exist to-day, in view of the fact that the towns of Port Arthur and Fort William are crying for relief, that the City of Toronto is crying for relief, that the farmers all over the country are desirous of using the telephone and demanding that they shall be free to use it on reasonable terms, it is surely time that something should be done. There is no way to break the monopoly and extend the use of the telephone except by nationalizing the lines and making provision for the municipalities to take over the local services."

Mr. Maclean concluded by repeating the notice he had given to the government that the first oportunity he had, on the motion for the house to go into committee of supply, he would introduce a motion in favor of public ownership of telegraphs and telephones.

Mr. Fitzpatrick Answered.

The minister of justice wanted to know when he had promised a bill to nationalize telegraph and telephone lines.

Mr. Maclean answered that the minister had prepared a general bill and he understood one of its clauses would provide for regulations of that kind.

Mr. Fitzpatrick said that he had introduced a bill in 1902, which, with Mr. Maclean's bill, was referred to a committee, and both were held over. Subsequently he was met by representatives of the municipalities, and no two of them could agree what should be done. There was no general opinion among them in favor of nationalizing the telephones. Mr. Maclean was alone of that opinion in the house. "Why does not my hon. friend bring in such a measure?" Mr. Fitzpatrick asked.

"I cannot, as a private member, introduce a measure in volving the expenditure of money. The minister of justice is paid to study the progress of events thruout the world, and he must see what they are doing in England, in Sweden, in Australia and other countries."

Mr. Fitzpatrick asked what was the deficit on the national telephone system in England in the last two or three years.

"There has not been any," was Mr. Maclean's reply.

Dr. Sproule Backed by Facts.

Dr. Sproule supported the contention of the member for East York in a practical speech. He maintained that the monopoly of the Bell Company was illegally exercised, judged upon constitutional standards. He quoted Prof. Black's well-known opinion on the power of eminent domain, in which it is stated in effect that this power is to be exercised for the public and not merely for the benefit of a private person; that "it must be also for the whole people, notwithstanding one or more individuals may be peculiarly or directly benefited."

Dr. Sproule added that corporations were equally bound to treat all the public alike, without discrimination.

He continued: "Now is that not exactly the case to-day? We have telephone lines springing up all over the country. I should give an example in my own section. A private telephone line is being built there to-day which will be about thirty miles in length. It passes thru several important villages, and most of the business men in these villages do their business at the C.P.R. station. At that station there is a Bell telephone, but the C.P.R. will not allow the private company to have a telephone in it. Now that railway corporation received a franchise and that franchise was to be exercised in the interests of the whole public. What right has that corporation to say that an individual who requires to do his business with the railway company shall not receive the same advantage as another individual? Take the business men living along this line; take the Villages of Heathcote, Duncan, Kimberly and Wodehouse, all of them within a radius of thirty miles, thru which this telephone line will pass. These business men wish to receive information from the station, but they will not be allowed to put a telephone into the stations so that they may receive that information, because, forsooth, the Bell Telephone Company has acquired a monopoly of the right to do business thru that station. The station was put there in compliance with the authority that was given to the C.P.R. to do something in the interest of the public, the whole public equitably, as between one man and another. Therefore, I ask why has this corporation allowed a monopoly to one company and shut out all others? But that is only one instance?"

Discrimination Also.

Dr. Sproule also instanced the discrimination similarly exercised against competitive telephone lines for Markham and Shelburne, whoch serve important villages, to the detriment of one and for the benefit of another, and to prevent the people receiving the benefit from a public utility to which they are entitled.

"The result of the decision of the railway commission lately is," continued Dr. Sproule, "that the people of Port Arthur cannot get their telephone into the station unless they pay a consideration for it, in addition to which they must pay damages to the Bell Telephone Company. Does it not seem absurd that it should be so? Does it not seem that we are truly a long-suffering people or we would demand and insist on parliament taking steps to bring these public corporations to their senses, so that they wil ltreat the public all alike? There is an urgent demand that some control shall be exercised over these corporations, so that they may use their franchises for the benefit of the whole public and not for the benefit of a portion of it. It is these very questions which, for the rapidly educating popular sentiment up to the pitch when the people will demand that these utilities shall be taken over by the state, so that the public will secure the benefits which they expected to secure, and to which they are entitled to assume the have a right, but which they cannot obtain until means are found for controlling these corporations. This incident forces on the question of state ownership, and state ownership will be the ultimate destiny in this matter so that we may secure to the public the rights to which they are entitled. Events are rapidly shaping themselves in that way."

No other member spoke on the question. Mr. Dyment, in whose constituency are the Towns of Fort William and Port Arthur, most vitally interested on the subject, not only refrained from speaking, but actually got up and left the chamber while the discussion was in progress.

FOUND DEAD IN CANAL.

Cornwall, May 13.—Early this morning the lockmen found the body of a man floating in the canal at the lower docks. All the clothes were gone except the shoes and socks. The body had evidently been in the water a long time. The head was crushed and both arms were missing. It is possible that it may be the remains of E. McClusky, the G. T. R. operator, who mysteriously disappeared from here last October.

DROWNED IN STURGEON CREEK.

Winnipeg, May 13.—F. Pelletier lost his life in Sturgeon Creek, near Edmonton, recently. He attempted to shoot Saskatchewan Rapids, but the boat upset and he was drowned.

Deposit Against Strike.

Montreal, May 13.—There is every likelihood of there being trouble in one of the city clothing factories within the next day or two. In view of the possibility of a strike, the firm has demanded that all present employes and any that may be engaged in the future shall pay $25 in cash as a guarantee that they will not go on strike, this deposit to be forfeited should they do so. This action has engendered much dissatisfaction among the employes. A leading member of the Tailors' Union expressed the opinion to-day that the men would not stand such treatment for a moment. The men fear that this is a case of extortion. They say it would be an easy matter for a contractor to create a strike and then pocket the large sum of money deposited.

RECEPTION TO DR. HOYLES.

A reception was tendered to N. W. Hoyles, K. C., the president of the Upper Canada Bible Society, on Thursday evening, to mark his return from London, where he represented the society at the great centenary celebration of the British and Foreign Bible Society. Elias Rogers took the chair, and an address of welcome was given by Ald. Coatsworth.

Dr. Hoyles gave a most interesting account of the great London centenary meetings. He was specially struck with the large space given by the secular press, and in many instances the sporting press, to accounts of the Bible Society's doings. It was a splendid tribute to the book and an evidence of the strong hold it still has on the English-speaking people. And this in spite of the fact that the Bible is handled there in language that seems very free indeed.
