JANUARY, 1853.

hath 31 days.

THERE can be but little doubt—for it is as well established as any other point in medicine—that the temperament, general degree of health, habits, predispositions, etc. of the parent are very apt to descend to the child; and if the health of the father and mother has been impaired by a long course of inebriety, or their intellectual powers much deteriorated, we may expect to see the lamentable consequences in the debilitated bodies and emaciated minds of their unhappy progeny.—Dr. Lindsly.

The children of drunkards are as much liable to insanity as those of lunatics.—Dr. Cox.
