FURTHER REPORTS OF DAMAGE IN STORM ON UPPER ST. JOHN
(Frederick Gleason)
The damage caused by the terrific electrical storm and cloudburst on Upper St. John river this week is now placed at more than $100,000.
This estimate includes only the bridges, highways and railways, as it is as yet too early to make any definite statement as to what the damage to the crops will amount to, although it will be severe.
At least three children were killed and a woman and another child were injured, one of the children being killed while in its mother's arms. All these fatalities occurred near Grand Falls, and there are no new casualties reported today.
The railways are being repaired, the C. P. R., Transcontinental and Temiscouata lines all having been tied up as a result of washouts, and the highway bridges and roads are being temporarily repaired also. The damage to the roads and bridges in Madawaska county alone will amount to between $80,000 and $40,000 and the damage in Victoria County will bring the figures up to at least $50,000, it was said today.
The most serious damage to the public services in Madawaska County is at the Four-Mile Brook bridge, near Edmundston, which has been carried out. It was a comparatively new structure, but could not withstand the terrific onslaught of water. A big concrete culvert in the same district was also carried out. There are washouts on the highways and railways 100 feet long and 40 feet deep.
The rains caused a sudden rise in the river both at points on the Upper St. John and here. At Perth it was stated that the river came up about twelve feet, while the rise in the river here has been about three feet. As a result of this sudden rise some of the small lumber drives on the Tobique, that have been making very slow progress are likely to come out in a few days.
The St. John River Log Driving Company shipped their boats from Woodstock today to assist the operators on the Tobique and this lumber will be driven to the booms

FORMER ST. JOHN BOYS DO THEIR BIT IN CANADIAN CLUB OF NEW YORK
The hearts of Canadians wherever found were stirred by Canada's ready declaration to do her part when this mighty struggle of nations began. Nowhere was this more evidenced than in the Canadian Club of New York, where the desire for participation at once put the question "What can we do to help?"
At the first meeting voluntary offerings enabled them to send $1,000 to Ottawa as a contribution to the Canadian Patriotic Fund. Since, another $1,000 check has been contributed to this fund, and again, in response to an inquiry, "What can we do to help, where is there a real need we can care for here?" Ottawa responded, "Provide against the suffering and want among the dependents on your side of the line left behind by those enlisting in the Canadian regiments, as these are outside of our jurisdiction." This work throughout the entire State of New York is now being done.
"Where more can we do to help?" was again asked when Surgeon-General G. Sterling Byerson, founder of the Canadian Red Cross Society, addressed the Canadian Club of New York in last February. He replied, "Motor ambulances are needed." As a result, seven ambulances marked "Gift of the Canadian Club of New York to the Canadian Red Cross Society" are now at the front.
The Times has just received the Canadian Club of New York 1916-1916 Year Book and special mention of members W. J. McCaffrey, J. C. Bullock, J. C. Bettinson, Dr. A. Vernon Clarke, James Strang and Dr. A. L. Anderson, who still boast of being St. John boys. Their friends here are glad thus to hear from these sons of St. John, and their efforts at doing their bit through the Canadian Club of New York. Further evidences of activities gratifying to their St. John friends will be watched with interest. at Douglas. There has been a new run of logs and driftwood and boats and boat-houses have been carried away in some instances

The Man In The Street
A fine Saturday pretty nearly compensated for a wet Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.
No, dear reader, the Bremen has not been captured and towed into Halifax, as far as we know.
Or, if it has, there are more untruthful persons in official circles in Halifax and Ottawa than we had even suspected.
The chap who started that story has earned the right to a job as correspondent for the local government organ.
We are referring to the same paper that insists that public spirited gentlemen who expose graft in government contracts should be prosecuted as well as persecuted.
Two chaps were walking along a city street this morning when one stopped suddenly, stooped down and picked up a dime. He scarcely had got through crowding over his good luck when the other man made a swoop and gathered in another ten cent piece from the sidewalk.
And then they bumped into three men, one woman, two boys and a dog because their eyes were glued to the sidewalk in the search for further gleanings from the silver harvest.
If it were not for the fact that it would require a special corps of police to handle the traffic on that spot this afternoon, we would reveal the fact that this took place on Charlotte street near St. Andrew's rink.
A Fitting Rebuke
They were standing in front of the old post office building and both, we regret to record, showed the effects of a drinking on the beer when it is brown. One of the chaps was in a talkative mood and his conversation was liberally embellished with language he had not learned in Sunday school. His friend was listening patiently, but finally he got too much for him.
"Look here, you blank, blank son of a blank," he said, "why in some-one's other can't you open your blankety blank mouth without using so many doubled datted cuss words?"
Note—Owing to censorship regulations the language used is a liberal translation and not an exact quotation.
Colonel Bob's Promotion
How Robert S. Low, well known in St. John as the foreman of the Hiram Company when they were laying pavements here, received his title of colonel is told by a local man who got the story in Ottawa recently.
"Bob" was in charge of the work of laying out Camp Martletier soon after the war was declared and, when Sir Sam Hughes arrived at the camp, he was busy rushing the work along. A demonstration of patriotism on the part of the men of the camp does not hold a very high status and, as the minister of militia dearly loves a uniform, he decided that a change was in order.
"Better order a captain's uniform for yourself," he said, adding "you will hold that rank in future."
Bob is willing to try anything once so he agreed and placed his order. The next time the minister of militia visited the camp, Low was in uniform and he had not learned that a change was in order.
"I thought I told you to get a captain's uniform," he remarked.
"That's right," said Bob, "you did, but those blankety blank tailors in Quebec never made me up a double breasted colonel's outfit, so I thought I'd better wear it until I got it changed."
"Never mind," kept you are a colonel from now on," was Sir Sam's prompt method of making the clothes fit the man.
He Salutes Them Now
The returned soldier was talking to the man in the street, when a military nurse passed. The veteran stood at "attention" and saluted smartly. When she had passed, he remarked:
"Do you know, I haven't got used to saluting the nurses yet, though no one thinks more of them than I do," he said. "I remember the first time I met one of them. I was a raw 'rooky' then and I had not learned that there were such things as military nurses, much less that they ranked as officers and should be saluted as such."
"It was just after I had enlisted and I was doing duty at the armory when a chipper little dame drifted along. I thought she had an odd taste in clothes, but she had other qualifications that made me cast an admiring glance over her when she inquired the way to the C. O.'s office. By'n by she came back again and, this time she stopped and turned back to speak to me."
"I was just thinking that girls simply could not resist stopping to admire me in my new uniform when she began to talk."
"Look here, my man," she said, "don't let me know enough to salute an officer?"
"I do," I says, "it was the first thing they taught me when I joined."
" Well, then, why don't you salute me?" she asks.
"That's another matter," says I. "I know how to salute a pretty girl, but I didn't think it would be proper to do it in public."
" How dare you," says she, stamping her pretty little foot as she says it. "I am an officer and entitled to be saluted as such."
" It's yours to me," I told her. "There's one or two officers around here that you might call old women, but this is the first pretty girl I've met that claimed the honor."
" She was a perky little piece, and her eyes flashed fire as she says, 'My man, you are impudent and I ought to take your name and number.'
" Says I: 'Apart from the remarks anent impudence, I'm not your man, just yet, though I'm not saying I wouldn't like to be. As for the rest of it, you seem to have got my number already, and you can have my name any time you want to give up your own.'
" And I was thinking to myself what a fine little jokers she was and how ready she was to swap jokes with a fellow, when along comes the major. 'Ah, good morning, Lieutenant,' is there anything I can do for you?' he asks, and gives her the salute like she was a major general."
" No," says she, "I took pity on this poor man's ignorance and was trying to explain to him his duty to salute an officer, but I do not seem to have been very successful."
" Then the major took me in hand and, say by the time he got through with me, I was ready to salute every skirt I met on the chance that they had established a few more ladies auxiliaries with military rank that I had not heard of."

MAY HAVE TO BRING IN MEN
Mr. Cozzolino Speaks of Difficulty in Getting Laborers on Valley Railway Construction
It may be necessary to import men from New York to carry on the work of building the lower section of the Valley Railway. Owing to the war and the consequent absence of so many of our own men at the front and also the number of men taken for munitions and other forms of work at home, it is declared practically impossible to secure men for jobs of this kind.
Thomas Cozzolino, one of the Nova Scotia Construction Company, the chief contractors on the Valley road, who was in the city yesterday on his way from his home in Sydney to visit the construction work, spoke of this phase of their problem. He said that all the sub-contractors are now at work and are doing as well as can be expected of them, but he said that men are the biggest requirement for the work and the men are not to be had. He did not like the idea of going outside of the country for workmen but did not see that there was any other course open, if the work is to be carried on at a reasonable rate of speed.
Another illustration of the desperate need for men for this work is found in the fact that the chief of the Police Department, Chief of Police Simpson from one of the sub-contractors on the road. The latter writes to the chief suggesting that the chief might be glad to get rid of some of the Germans, Austrians and other alien enemies around the city and, if so, he would be glad to look after them.
The contractor was willing to pay $225 to any alien or any other man who would and could do a day's work.
When the announcement of the adoption of the western route was made by the government it was said that the new section would be finished in time to allow Valley railway trains to run into St. John by next February. There evidently is no hope now that this promise will be carried out as none of those in authority will venture an opinion regarding the date of the completion of the road.

SECOND SON DONS KHAKI; THIRD TRIES FOUR TIMES
Presentations to Louis O. Collins, Son of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Collins, Somerset Street
One son in France with the Army Service Corps, another in the Construction Corps and a third manly endeavoring to pass the board of examiners is a demonstration of patriotism on the part of the sons of what is the most distinguished family in the city and, if so, he would be glad to look after them.

LOCAL NEWS
TO MAKE REPAIRS.
At a meeting of the Carleton Curling Club, held last evening, it was decided to make some necessary repairs to their rink. Work will be started in the near future so that the building will be in good condition for next winter.
THE MARKET
Dealers in the city market say that the berry season, now in full swing, has been the biggest in years, and that the prices there were asked have been reasonable, both for the wholesale and retail dealers. Prices in the local city market are about the same as the previous week. Eggs are still very high, selling for 35 cents. Butter is 28 cents. Chickens are selling for $1.25 to $2; fowl, 20 cents; pork, eighteen to twenty cents; veal, fourteen to twenty; beef, twelve to twenty-eight. Lamb is very high, twenty-two to twenty-seven cents. The farmers are bringing very few lambs this season. Wild raspberries are 25 cents, blueberries 15 and strawberries for 40 cents a peck, beans 50 cents and peas 35 cents.
