POLICEMAN SAYS MAN NOT DRUNK

Difference in Opinion With Inspector, and Case Is Postponed in Police Court.

In the police court this morning John Hefferman, charged with being drunk, pleaded not guilty. Inspector Merryfield, who made the arrest, said he was walking along Union street last night and saw a man who he thought was drunk and heard him tell a man that he had a "bottle." The inspector searched him but found no bottle. He took him along the street until he met Policeman Thomas, and he handed the accused over to him, saying that he would go to the station later and prefer the charge. Policeman Harry Donahue told of seeing the accused in a cell, but he was not drunk. The accused went on the stand and said he was not drunk and that he was walking along the street, quietly. The case was postponed until this afternoon.

George Wilcox, who was arrested last night on the ferry, was charged with being drunk and having liquor in his possession. He pleaded guilty and said he paid $8 for the liquor. He was re-arrested.

IRISH HONOR THEIR PATRON SAINT PATRICK

Services Today in Catholic Churches—Inspiring Sermon in Cathedral by Mission Father—Raising Funds for Orphans.

Irishmen the world over are today honoring their patron saint of the emerald isle, Saint Patrick. In St. John the event was commemorated by special services in the Catholic churches and this evening will be observed with entertainments, the proceeds of which will go to the orphans. Entertaining strains of Irish airs pealed forth from the Cathedral chimes this morning, charmingly rendered by the organist, Arthur S. Goddard, including "St. Patrick's Day," "Dear Little Shamrock," "Believe Me 'Kilmeny" and the "Harp That Once Thro' Tara's Hall." In addition he played Irish airs on the organ and the juvenile choir before the high mass at 10 o'clock sang some hymns appropriate to the day.

At solemn high mass in the Cathedral His Lordship the Bishop was present. It was celebrated by Rev. Wm. Dineen with Rev. W. L. Moore, deacon, Rev. R. J. McCarthy, sub-deacon, Rev. S. C. O'Connell, master of ceremonies and Rev. L'Abbe Casgrain and Rev. Father Flanagan in the sanctuary. The sermon was preached by Rev. Wm. Lynch of Philadelphia, one of the mission fathers conducting the Cathedral mission. It was a beautiful and inspiring discourse on Irish faith, aglow with reminiscence, unstinted in praise of the works of the famed apostle, Saint Patrick. "Go, therefore, teach ye all nations," was the text chosen by the speaker. "It is with great joy that we today celebrate another St. Patrick's Day," he said in part. "The tramp of the Irish shakes the world. There is a triumph for St. Patrick, for Ireland and for God that they have gathered today to worship as they have for centuries in the light of the faith left them through his teaching. St. Patrick held aloft the torch of faith as one would hold a torch in the midst of darkness and when it fell from his dying hands a thousand hands ran to grasp it. They have carried it to all parts of the world. St. Patrick may sleep on in peace, the roses of martyrdom and the lilies of purity may bloom over his grave—his dear Irish people will keep their faith with him. They have not broken the trust. Today every Irish heart goes back in memory to the time when Ireland's men and women followed their faith in trying conditions, bearing cross in long toils, when priests knelt in the snow, announcing their stricken followers. Ireland stands today clad in her famous beauty with the voices of her exiled children sounding across the seas, a land which angels well make their abiding place. But though beautiful in the soul of Ireland, though lovely in the garment woven by nature, more beautiful is the martyrdom of God. This it is which blinds her exiled children to her heart. She is a nation because of her Catholicity, the Catholic because of the great saint whose feast we celebrate today, who first spread the mantle over the land, who inspired the loyalty to God which has lived through all the centuries. Wicked men tried to rob them of the faith but they only fringed the mantle with the glorious red of martyrs.

Father Lynch referred to the pagan times and the early worship of the Celts until the light of Christianity was brought by St. Patrick. He lighted a fire on Tara's hills which has never been extinguished, the fire of Catholic faith. The faith spread through the land and the Irish have never forgotten it. Though another land may claim St. Patrick, it was to Ireland he gave his youth, his life, his soul. It was in Irish soil he slept till the coming of the resurrection morn. Wales had its St. David, the faith he preached was dead, Augustine brought the faith to England; he was forgotten. St. Andrew brought the word to Scotland; he was no longer honored there. St. Boniface went to parts of Germany—they had forgotten his faith. But as year rolled after year, and century followed century, St. Patrick was not forgotten. His fame and glory but increased. It was the pride and glory of Ireland on this day to hear again the story they loved so well. The English Cardinal Manning said of him: "There is no apostle save St. Paul who has done so much for Catholicity; greater than any other apostle is St. Patrick."

Ireland's people had spread the faith throughout the world, the true faith, the right religion. When Ireland was "a land of saints and scholars," she sent her missionaries through Europe and other lands spreading the word of God. She was in her splendor then. When the day came at home when the test of faith had to be made she gave everything for her faith, even her blood. Famine and pestilence came, her people left her shores. But still the faith was held. Canada opened her arms and the Irish people came. But some of the ships were rotten and went to pieces on her shores. A huge Celtic cross on the banks of the St. Lawrence was but one monument to their memory; it looked down upon the graves of 12,000 Irish buried beneath it who suffered for the cross of Christ. But no matter where they had gone they had given to the world the Catholic faith, they had built tabernacles to God, and today in those tabernacles throughout all countries they shouted a mighty poem of triumph to God for the faith St. Patrick brought them. Today Irish hearts become young again, and the world resounded with the tramp of Irish feet to worship in their little churches or their mighty cathedrals. Out of famine or pestilence, through the red flame of war, no matter where, their hands stretched out to St. Patrick in their love for the faith he taught. "O great and glorious St. Patrick! May Irish men and women keep faith with thee. May we have your love and faith to please our God until the very end of time."

In Other Churches
In the other Catholic churches of the city special St. Patrick's day sermons were preached before large congregations. Collections were taken for the benefit of the orphans.

Would A 40% Saving Interest You At This Particular Time?

A large Upper Canadian furniture factory of worth recently changed ownership and the new owners found a comparatively large stock of incomplete bedroom suites on hand. Some designs with the bed missing, others a dressing table, etc., and rather than complete them at present costs decided to dispose of the stock at prices which operated months ago—not the present high.

Our buyer was quick to take advantage of this situation and effected an immediate purchase—hence we pass on our good fortune to you. The woods are mahogany, walnut and quartered oak, and designs most acceptable.

But the price will be the chiefest consideration. For instance, you can get a dresser at $72, $76.50, $79.20 and $81.00—and chiffoniers and dressing tables at proportionate prices.

These are all high grade in every way and if made today would easily demand at least 40 per cent. more than we are asking.
