ment of a policy of tribute. The senate will tell him to get the consent of the people before carrying out a policy which was not adopted in the interests of Canada and the Empire, but because of an alliance made between Mr. Borden and the Nationalists. It is the boast of Mr. Henry Bourassa that the Nationalists forced Mr. Borden to repudiate the Canadian navy resolution which he supported in 1909. The same Nationalists stand in the way of a return to the policy of a Canadian navy. One of these Nationalists during the election campaign in 1911, in the course of a violent speech in which he charged the Laurier cabinet with being a cabinet of Imperialists who wanted to

"The navy belongs to His Majesty.
Is that a Canadian navy? Who is His Majesty? Have we any majesty here? Is that a Canadian navy? Who is His Majesty? Have we any majesty here? This navy is wanted by the Lords of England, who will not pay taxation there, and are striving to get it out of the mutes? The same of the government of which Dr. Pugsley was a member, and which Mr. Carvell the mutes' dance and swung dumb belies around all evening." will be well to remember Mr. Cockshutt

all places and against all people of this protector (Britain) of our constitutional liberty, but we will not be made to forget that in 1837 it was necessary to bore holes in this flag with bullets in order to breathe the air of liberty. We owe nothing to Britain. England did not take Canada for love or to plant the cross of religion, as the French did, but in order to plant their trading posts and make money. The only liberties we have are those we won by force, and today England tries to dominate her colonies as Imperial Rome once did. Those who disembowelled our fathers on the Plains of Abraham are asking you today to go and be killed for them. We have had enough both of England and the English. These are the allies of Mr. Borden today. But for them Canada would today have a naval policy worthy of the name. The senate will delare that the people of this brevent and accomplements to the property. A dittle later the barkeeper came over to August, desk and said: "Say, August, the cost of living is goin' up so fast that I gotta have more day. Still more significant as expressing the cordial relations that have developed will be the conference between English and German statesmen. The highway bill which is how before the senate would, if adopted in its present form, enable the government of the day to spend money very freely where it would do the most good for political party purposes. That is the Rogers that I gotta have more to August, "I guess that I'll gotta have more day and the English."
