They, however, reported this to Deputy Sheriff Foster, who was at Hartland. A re-Foster, who was at Hartland. A revolver, which one of the party borrowed from Hanlon, was later sent out to Johnville, where it was identified by the owner whose trunk was in the depot and which had been broken into. This was the final link in the chain of evidence and when the deputy sheriff finished his seventeen mile drive here the boys who worked up the case had Hanlon safe in the hotel and all unconscious that he was suspected.

All that was stolen beside the money was a case of gin, a jug of whiskey, two boxes of cartridges and a pair of lady's bedroom slippers and a silk belt. These goods were found under some straw underneath the freighthouse adjoining the passenger station.

that the stramer Malacca has been released and that in consequence the existing tension has been relieved.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—The Russian reply to the British protest was handed to Ambasador Hardinge this afternoon. Therein Russia agrees that the Malacca shall not be brought before a prize court, and undertakes that no similar incident shall occur in the future. As a matter of formality the Malacca's cargo will be examined at some port in the Mediterranean, probably Suda Bay, Island of Crete, in the presence of the British consul.

The final successful charge was delivered at half-past five in the afternoon. The Japanese succeeded in partially cutting off the Russian retreat and this soon became a rout. The Russian forces engaged included in addition to the artillery, seven battalicns of infantry and a regiment of Cossacks. The enemy left 131 dead and 800 rifles on the field. Prisoners taken estimated the Russian losses at a thousand. The Japanese lost one officer and 54 men killed and 18 officers and 351 men wounded.
