NERVILINE CURED QUICKLY

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold draft places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferronone at meals and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleuris, and enjoy perfect health."

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of making through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures, lunges, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatic and rheumatism. Refuse any subject your dealer may suggest on Nerviline only. Large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. Sold everywhere, or The Catarthousine Co., Kingston, Ont.

Lansdowne While in Canada

Canadians will remember Lord Lansdowne, now so prominently in the public eye owing to the contest of Lords, as Governor-General.

If he lacked the warmth or the spontaneous brilliancy of a Dufferin, or the bluff heartiness of a Stanley, he offered a dignity, a weight, a lucidity of utterance. A scrupulous exactness, a foresight which marked him out for leadership in the large place.

A certain austerity was marked, but it well became him.

One could not well think of him as greatly relaxing, and yet he had warmth and geniality. At the same time he was the representative of his Majesty; he was the copy of royalty; he was in a position requiring dignity and measured relations. In all his public functions he expressed this sense of responsibility.

In all his public speeches he offered grace and illumination. He had the chosen word, which fitted its place like a glove. His diction was polished like a cameo. Something of Celtic fervor he missed, but there was always weight and meaning, and taste in his deliverance.

He showed a deep interest in the progress of art and learning, and his convocations of the various universities were models of clearness, of weighty reflection.

With the abiding life of this country he was in full sympathy, and kept in touch with all its manifestations.

Lady Lansdowne was stately and queen-like, of a delicate, patrician beauty, and well fitted to give distinction to a young society, whose growth she encouraged in all charming ways.

The term of office of Lord Lansdowne was not marked by any large event; but it was contemporaneous with the beginning of the war of the C. P. R., and all the development which was contingent upon the completion of that system.

It may be remembered at the time, that a sensational episode marked the beginning of Lord Lansdowne's rule at Ottawa. His Lordship owned and still owns (if he has not recently sold under the Purchase Act) extensive estates in Ireland. At that time (1885) the Land League was very active, and borrowing was in full force, and the landlords had rather a lively time of it. A certain unpopularity attached to Lord Lansdowne as an absentee landlord, who, it was alleged, insisted upon his "pound of flesh" in the form of rack rents.

Police Lord Lansdowne landed on our shores the press of the world was filled with the alleged details of a Land League plot to assassinate him the moment he landed in the Dominion.

Although names were mentioned yet the story was plausibly concocted and many in the Mother County expected to hear of the "removal" of his Lordship, after the manner of the Phoenix Park murders.

Nothing happened. The Governor-General, with his
