—Perhaps no naturalist has penetrated so far into Central Africa as Prof. Drammond. His testirony is that the picture of Central Africa wish we have in our mind's eye is all a mistake. It is not a jungle in which wild beasts abound and monkrys are to be seen olimbing upon every wild beasts, and there is not a monkey to be seen in a month. Regarding the inhabitants, he inform us that we could never know how amazingly simple and primitive a creature man could be with out a trip to Central Africa. One stick serves the African savage for a sword, and fifty for a house. He has no wants.

—The Cape Stable Adsertiser says: The crew working at the wreck of the Sulina, on the Horse Races shoal, have had occasion, while, operating there, to observe many peculiarities of the tide of the Case, which has hitherto been unnotized. They say that the chot lide runs its ordinary course only for four hours. It then meet a hitherto been unnotized. They say hat the chot lide runs its ordinary course only for four hours. It then meet he flood exting westerly by Baccan and is deflected to the south, running in that direction with a very brief slack, and soon turning to the regular westerly ourrent, so that there are actually sight hours of flood and only four of that It might be of service to mariners to make not only the stable of the contract of a standard doller. It is the exact representation of a cow's head, it is about the size of a standard doller, it is the exact representation of a cow's head, it is about the size of a standard doller. The right of Labor, he say, recognize that an injury to one is the concern of all, and they want to see justice prevail the world over. English runs of the condition of Bettish tollers.
