SOX COME BACK AND SHUT OUT REDS IN THIRD GAME

Kerr on Chicago Mound Pitched a Great Game. Fisher Weakens Under Strain in Third.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—The Chicago White Sox to-day served emphatic notice that they were still in the world's championship contest by defeating Cincinnati, 3 to 0. The series now stands: Cincinnati 3; Chicago 1. Six more games are possible.

Dick Kerr, who in his younger days was something of a boxer as well as a ball player in St. Louis, and who came to the White Sox from Milwaukee, pitched unbeatn ball, allowing but three scattered hits and but one pass to first. Kerr's home is at Paris, Texas, and he first played professional baseball at Paragon, Ark. He made everybody sit up and look at him to-day, for his left wing curve was more mysterious than a sphinx. Duncan, Kopf and Fisher, the Cincinnati pitcher, who also hurled a good game, were the only Reds to obtain safe bingles off the Texan, while his sole complimentary passage to first was granted to Groh. None of these athletes reached third base.

Twenty-nine thousand persons, including a band of rovers from Cincinnati, saw the game, which was played beneath a bright sun in a temperature which was ideal. There was scarcely breeze enough to waft the flags which floated from innumerable stands. Gleason Feels Gratified. After the trouncing which the American League received at Cincinnati, Manager Gleason felt particularly gratified that his team was the first to score a shut-out. There were a few vacant seats in the left field bleachers probably due to the belief on the part of many that obtaining seats would entail too great a struggle. Ground rules were unnecessary, as the playing field everywhere was clear, save just off the first and third base foul lines. Fisher who was Moran's choice for to-day, was the first right-hander offered by the Reds, the first two games having been won by Ruethe and Salpe, both left-handers. Fisher's hurling was as good as that of either of his team mates, but one run at least is necessary to win a game, and little Dick Kerr had none to spare to-day. Fisher allowed seven hits and issued two passes. Two of the Sox runs, however, were largely chargeable to the Red pitcher, for it was while his wild heave to catch a runner at second base that he pitched into the hands of Sox players were put in a position to score and Gandil drove them across the rubber a moment later.

Play Differently at Home. Liebold's back in his regular position in right field and at the top of the White Sox batting list when "play ball" was called. Despite the loss of the first inning, however, the local enthusiasts were confident that the Sox would exhibit the kind of ball that won the leadership of their own league. There was considerable evidence of the attitude of the players themselves, but no more than that displayed by the Reds, who acted and felt like men of destiny. The first inning gave the evidence of the air-tight struggle that was to come. Rath, the first man up, contributed a grounder and was out like a shot to Gandil. Daubert cracked a hard one to Felsch. Kerr planted his feet firmly and with beautiful control struck out Groh. The local crowd breathed easier to note how easily the mighty slugger of the first two games were disposed of, but their own side was as quickly retired. Liebold's fly came down softly as a feather in the mitt of Duncan; Eddie Collins was retired, shortstop to first, and Weaver popped to Daubert. With Rousch down in the second there was a little gasp of fright among the Chicagoans and cheers for the visiting enthusiasts when Duncan singled cleanly over second. Kerr, however, remained steady. He put an extra twist on the ball and Kopf was retired, the first Sox partisan to be struck out. Fisher, who had missed a heart-beat, for Rietberg juggled the ball around until it was too late to keep Duncan from second and he narrowly missed getting Kopf at first. The best Neale could deliver was a slow roller to Collins, who threw him out at first. Kerr was cheered as he left the field.

The home crowd found inspiration in a view of the broad shoulders of Joe Jackson and rooted for a hit. The big outfielder swung like a cyclone at two and then he clearly to left. "Happy" Felsch, the next man up, attempted the usual sacrifice offering, but the fates had decreed that he was to circle the bases after a brief pause at second base. It was here that Fisher lost his own game. Felsch's little bunt percolated to Fisher quickly and attempted to catch Jackson at second. Fisher was off his balance and his heave rolled into the center garden. Jackson, who had slid, tumbled as he dug his toes in to renew his running, but scrambled to his feet in time to make third. On the throw to third Felsch made second base. With men on second and third and none out the stands went wild, yelling for victory. Reds Vacant Fourth. In the third inning Fisher, for the Sox, delivered hits, but nothing came of them. In the fourth inning, however, Rietberg delivered the one long hit of the day and it resulted in the third and last run of the day. The shortstop's wallop went to far right field and before the ball was returned he was on third base, a pandemonium of noise testifying to the joy of the crowd. There was but one down and the fans began calling for another run. Schalk came to bat in the emergency and hit one which came so erratically to Fisher that he was unable to place his hands on it. Rietberg scored. Schalk went out stealing and Kerr was retired on an infield play.

Retire in Retention. In the next four innings Fisher and his team mates played brilliantly and the Sox were successively retired in rotation. The Sox played the game no less intensely. In the fifth inning, Kopf singled and was forced at second on Hardeen's infield out, but Fisher was unable to drive him home. Schalk, walking to the mound and spoke steady words to Kerr and the latter, delivering a tantalizing grounder, fiddled Fisher into a dribbling grounder on which he was out, Weaver to first.

Two games remains to be played here to-day and Sunday. Sunday night the teams will their loyal followers, return to Cincinnati for two games more. The intensity of the rivalry between the two teams produced a spot between Smith, Cincinnati utility infielder, and Eddie Collins. Players and umpires crowded between the two men and they separated muttering.

THE IND. LABOR CANDIDATE OPENS CAMPAIGN

Mr. George Haehnel and others Present Party's Platform. The campaign of the Independent Labor candidate in the city was set off to a start on Saturday evening when a public meeting was held in St. Mary's Hall on Young Street. The candidate, Mr. George Haehnel of Waterloo, and several other speakers fired the political shots. The meeting started at about nine o'clock, which hour gave many a person who had been engaged in doing some shopping down street time to drop in and hear the addresses. The attendance was large and the hall filled to capacity. Mr. Charles Massel, president of the Independent Labor executive presided and in opening the meeting he thanked the many attendants for coming out. He referred to the progress of the campaign so far and to the signs that the policy of the Independent Labor Party is being well received by a growing number of observers. He impressed the necessity, however, of organization and cooperation. He touched on the Labor platform and impressed the plank of the province controlling its natural resources instead of allowing exploiting by private individuals to go on. Mr. George Haehnel, the candidate, in his address, stressed his determination to conduct a clean campaign and to refrain from personalities. His aim was to place the platform of the Independent Labor Party straight before the people and let them weigh and judge its merits as compared to other platforms. He alluded to the fact that

DISCUSSES POLITICAL MAKERS IN CANADA. Ottawa, Oct. 6.—Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal Party in Canada, is back in Ottawa this morning after a week spent in Prince Edward Island and especially in the visit of Prince, where he is the Liberal candidate in the pending by-election. No opponent has been definitely placed as yet. Mr. King is enthusiastic about Prince Edward Island and about the people down by the sea. He returned up and down the county of Prince, which is 100 miles long and about an average of 20 miles wide. He addressed two public meetings, one at Summerside and the other at Alberton. Mr. King this morning gave an unqualified denial to report which came from the west last week that he had made an arrangement so that Grain Growers' candidates would not be opposed by Liberals in the prairie and that the candidacy of Hon. W. E. Motherwell, in Assiniboia, meant a protest and revolt against such an arrangement. Mr. King declared emphatically that he had not tried to interfere in Assiniboia in all ridings were the judges in the field. Mr. King said the relations between himself and Mr. Motherwell were entirely cordial and that there had been no disagreement. While at Prince Edward Island, Mr. King discussed his war record and declared he would welcome a contest on that issue. Such time as he did spend in the Prince States during the war, Mr. King said, was in answer to special calls to assist in bringing
