

Street. Her husband, Dr. Anthony Marshall, was Secretary-Treasurer of the Building Committee for the erection of Saint Andrew's church, in the year 1820. She and the Doctor afterwards removed to Belleville, where, after his death, she taught school for many years, and was also a devoted Sabbath School teacher. She was a woman of superior attainments, and deservedly respected."

DR. PETER MARTER

Was one of the sons of Thomas Peter Marter, London, Eng. At the time of the birth of Dr. Marter, 1810, his father was Deputy Commissary-General of the British army. London was probably his birth-place. In 1815, he was in Brussels with his mother, and often said that he distinctly remembered hearing the firing at the battle of Waterloo.

In 1818, the family came to Halifax, thence to Annapolis, and afterwards to St. John, N.B.

Sir Howard Douglas, Governor of New Brunswick, and a friend of the family, became very much interested in the subject of this sketch. He gave him his entire education. He received his medical education at London, Edinburgh and Paris. At nineteen (the youngest graduate up to that date, 1829), he received his diploma from the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, London. He then went to Edinburgh, and thence to Paris. Among his papers are two certificates received in Paris—one dated July 24, 1830, stating that Mr. Peter Marter had attended a course in chirurgical anatomy and operative medicine, signed by Mallett, M.D., etc. The other is dated September 25, 1830, Hospital for the Poor, and is signed by Lorec. In 1831, he returned to New Brunswick, and practised for a time in St. John.

He married, in 1833, Augusta Hatch, daughter of the Hon. Harris Hatch, of St. Andrew's, and came, with his young bride, to Brantford. He was gazetted licentiate of Upper Canada, November, 1833, under 8th George IV., chap. 3. He remained in Brantford until 1858, when he took the family to Nova Scotia, where they lived but a year or two. Returning to
