

to the BRUNSWICKAN readers . . .

A week ago tonight the SRC made a close decision to cut off the Brunswickan publication this year. The story on the front page tells part of the story of what happened at that meeting. But not all of it . . .

The editorial staff of the paper went to the Council to tell them that we would likely be over our budget at the end of the year by about $500. We have now revised that figure to about $1,000, if we are to produce a good readable paper.

We explained to the SRC the reason for this deficit. First of all, we have received twice as much advertising as we expected. To accommodate it, we had to put out larger papers . . . and the cost of that extra size was not met by the increased advertising revenues. We have recommended that the advertising rates be raised next year, to prevent a recurrence.

There was nothing the Business Manager of the Brunswickan could have done to foresee this. We can only guess at the amount of advertising we will get, so our budget was not accurate. But the Council last fall permitted us to budget for $20 unforeseen . . . in a budget of over ten thousand dollars!

These are the arguments which we put forward for letting us publish until the end of the year:

—We think we can perform a valuable service to the readers.

—We have signed contracts with some of our advertisers and with our publishers. If we break them, we are putting next year's paper in serious jeopardy. This is especially crucial re some of the advertising agencies, who advertise in small college newspapers more as a courtesy than anything else.

—If we go to the end, we can publish a special year-end review donated by our publishers.

—Our mistaken forecasts this year, and our solutions to eliminate them in the future, will make a saving for the paper next year.

The SRC did not consider these arguments important; in fact the four most opposed would not even take the trouble to consider them. They accuse the Brunswickan of "moral wrong" in overspending our funds. But this is the same Council who raised the fees by over $6,000, when in the words of the Treasurer, "We only need to raise them to 19 dollars." And now that same Council is so broke it cannot even afford a party for itself!

This staff has tried to put out a paper with something for everybody. We have worked hard, and we hate to see the whole thing end up three issues short. To continue will cost about 44 cents per student, or 11 cents per paper. If you want to allow us to do that, there is a petition on Page 1. If not, our sincere thanks to everyone who has worked to make the paper a success . . . up to now.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Every year during and at the completion of our football season we continually hear of and read of dissatisfaction with the results of our team's performance on the field of play.

We, as coach and captain of next year's team are also dissatisfied — not with our team's efforts, but with those students who could have helped to achieve success, but chose to sit and watch, rather than work and play.

If you happen to be one of those students dissatisfied with our football program, the opportunity to do something about it is now at hand.

We feel that the recruiting of football talent in distant parts of the country is unnecessary. The football talent of which we speak is available here on our campus, and it is our desire to see it taking part.

On behalf of the University of New Brunswick Red Bomber Football Squad we would like to extend to all students, with or without experience, the invitation to lend support to the 1963 edition of the Red Bomber team.

All interested students are requested to attend a spring football meeting to be held in mid-March, and further information pertaining to next season's football program may be obtained from either of the undersigned.

Team Captain 1963

Dear Sir:

The purpose of this letter is not to aggravate any particular person but merely to pose a few questions and perhaps insert a few suggestions concerning various campus matters.

The first matter has to be with Radio UNB. In the light of the S.R.C. meeting of Feb. 4, '63, the fact was brought out that Radio UNB had illegally overspent their allowed budget of some $400.00 which the S.R.C. was left to pay for. For a while there was talk of punishing the whole club or the members responsible, but nothing came of this. However, the point which I fail to see is how Radio UNB can afford to make a donation of $700.00 to the practically decadent Building Committee, but could not afford to pay its own debts. In effect, this bad debt helped to curtail the activities of other clubs who at the same meeting were requesting additional financial aid but were turned down due to the lack of S.R.C. funds.

While on the matter of the Building Committee, it is so beginning to appear that the efforts of the Committee are very little, due to the fact, that they cannot convince the student body to any positive action. At the present, I believe the Building Committee has some $2,700.00 in funds and is merely waiting for the student body to decide on what it wants. Unfortunately the Build-

Radio U.N.B. presented a faite accompli to the S.R.C. maybe we should have too.—ed.

Isn't it wonderful:

—that McConnell Hall has enough salt and pepper shakers to provide for every third table.

—that they developed a conventional dressing to go with at least one meal a day.

—that glasses are so quickly washed that they contain added flavour for the next serving.

—that they have facilities to make enough desserts (of the same kind) to last at least four days.

—that there is "cold" water available in order to double the quantity of soup.

—that the Irish introduced potatoes (large and numerous).

—that jackets and ties are required for the weekly Saturday night banquet: cold, uncooked hotdogs and beans.

—that they supply one ash tray for every second table.

—that only half the cooking facilities work so that we get a variety of delicacies: overcooked, raw, or frozen and occasionally even wet.

—that they get their bread a week ahead of time so that they can freeze it and serve it cold.

—that McConnell Hall has many different sweet aromas to give further enjoyment while eating.

Dear Sir:

I write in praise of the McConnell Hall . . . that body devoted entirely to the physical nutrition of six hundred U.N.B. students, all of whom are extremely enthusiastic in their support and praise of the extraordinary creations upon which they daily feast.

The quality of the food served at this place of culinary delights is incomparable to any other in the world, and many students are so overcome with rapture that they refuse to eat for fear of spoiling a perfect meal. Fortunately, our beloved chefs never seem offended by this gesture, in fact, nothing seems to prevent them from producing each day those supreme examples of nourishment and delight for which they are famous.

If I may cite one example, I would select the day that our revered chefs perfected their world-famous method of preparing meat as the most serendipitous occasion this university has ever witnessed, and I am of the opinion that an anniversary should be observed to commemorate this auspicious event. As far as I have been able to determine, their method involves selection of the finest of preserved meats — cost is no object and methods of preparation formerly unknown to any but the originators of the art of cooking, and which have remained undisclosed to all but a few since their discovery one and one-half years ago.

I could go on to describe such masterpieces as the incomparable boiled potatoes, the everpopular beans, the delicious, steaming mounds of cabbage and turnip, which melt in one's mouth, and the best Jello in the world, but I realize that space is limited, and even if it were not, I could never say enough in praise of those wonders and pieces des resistance which are daily placed before us.

Sincerely yours,
Garett Estey

Dear Students:

The following is a brief summary of why the S.R.C. voted to stop publication of the Brunswickan.

The finance committee recommended to the S.R.C. that the Brunswickan be stopped at the break even point in order to prevent a debt which would be the responsibility of the incoming Council.

As of this issue the Brunswickan will be approximately $500. in debt. If publication continues until the end of the year, the total debt will be roughly $1100. These figures are a bare minimum.

Yours truly
David Munson,
Treas. S.R.C., Chairman
Finance Committee
