

TWO SISTERS SUFFERING FROM SMALL-POX.

The one on the right, aged 14, was successfully vaccinated in infancy; she contracted a mild modified small-pox and recovered without any scarring. The other, unvaccinated, developed a severe small-pox, finally recovering, although considerably pitted.

From "Weich and Schamberg on Acute Contagious Diseases."