

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S

SUPREME ADVANTAGES

IN CLIMATE, RESOURCES, BEAUTY, AND LIFE

BY—M. B. COTSWORTH, F. G. S.

British Columbia, as the Western Province of Canada, has the unique position and unrivalled advantage of possessing the whole of the Western Slope of the vast Canadian Watershed, from the dividing peaks of the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast; with its bracing atmosphere, bounteous rainfall, giving luxurious vegetation, teeming rivers and lakes, providing immense water power available for manufacturing, etc., purposes nearly all over the Provincial area, as shaded upon the Sketch Map of Canada, shown upon the end Exhibit I.

It contains an area of 395,000 square miles, or more territory than Great Britain, Ireland and Germany combined; and amongst its population of nearly 300,000, engaged in developing its vast mineral, timber, agricultural, fishing, and other abundant resources, has a larger percentage of British settlers than any other Province; because here they can find continuous prosperity and enjoy healthy family life, whilst extending their life-time under brighter and more invigorating climatic and business conditions than their dear homefolk can ever experience, even during the brightest years in Britain.

ANOTHER GLIMPSE OF THE PACIFIC.
Islelet Islet on the West Coast of Vancouver Island.