NEGRO SOCIETIES.

THE SOUTHERN COLORED MAN'S LOVE OF POMP AND CIRCUMSTANCE.

Wonderfully Named Organizations to Provide For Members' Sick Benefits and Funeral Expenses - How They Flourish In Charleston.

The southern negro's love of pomp and circumstance is nowhere exemplified more forcibly than in the manner in which he multiplies his charitable organizations. Inordinately fond of company, he has few societies founded with the sole view of promoting social enjoyment. For the most part, whatever foundations he makes have a semireligious trend, the dues entitling members to sick benefits and funeral expenses. There is usually an elaborate regalia and an intricate ritual, Not a few negroes of a southern city, such as Charleston, belong to no less than a score of these orders, the names of which are oftentimes curiously and wonderfully made. What, for instance, would the ordinary patron of secret organizations think of possessing membership in the Sons and Daughters of the Seven Golden Candlesticks In Charity or in the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise?

The sons and daughters idea is worked to the limit of endurance. There is scarcely a well known name in Biblical history that is not tacked on to it. There are in Charleston alone no less than seventy-five of these societies with charters from the state of South Carolina, and how many there are that have no legal status no man may say

Dues are paid weekly, and, strange as it may seem when the great poverty of the negro of the south is considered, the arrears, list is a brief one indeed. Of course the charges are small, usually about 25 cents a month, but when it is remembered that many individuals belong to six or eight or even more orders it is little short of marvelous how the funds necessary to meet the demands of the collectors are found, and yet it is so deep a disgrace to be expelled that instances of the kind are very rare. To hold membership in a number of societies is regarded as a

Meetings are held monthly in private residences, in public halls or, more frequently still, in churches. These gatherings begin at the fashionable hour of 10 p. m. and continue not infrequently throughout the night. Refreshments are to be had for a small consideration, and as these are for the most part of a liquid nature the sons and daughters are prone to be conspicuous by their absence from their several places of employment next morning. Often the police have to interfere to restore that harmony in which brothers and sisters should ever dwell together.

Among the societies in Charleston are the Sons and Daughters of the Pil grims, the Sons and Daughters of the Twelve Disciples, the Sons and Daughters of the Bearer of the Cross, the Sons and Daughters of the Evening Star, the Sons and Daughters of the Seventh Star, the Sons and Daughters of the Celestial Travelers, the Sons and Daughters of the Good Samaritan, the Sons and Daughters of the East, the Sons and Daughters of Lazarus, the Sons and Daughters of Christian Love, and there might be added to these fully twoscore of others. The devotion of the negroes to these organizations and their loyalty to their fellow members are absolute

The funeral of a colored man or woman who holds membership in a half dozen of these orders is a spectacle worth witnessing. Occasionally bitter feuds arise between rival societies for the possession of a corpse, for the negro's love of a funeral is not second even to his love of melons. The ceremonies usually begin the night before the actual interment is to take place. There are sermons, prayers and personal experiences interspiced with wild bursts of incoherent melody, which arouses religious fervor to fever height. Men and women faint in the course of the exercises, many others all into trances and talk of visions of their dead friends enthroned in glory.

The ceremonies culminate in a formal procession. It is forming for an hour before the residence of the late lamented son or daughter. Negroes from the uttermost parts of the city gather in the streets. The occasion is a festive one. They run and shout and caper. The members of the organizations to which the dead person belonged stand in solemn order, clad in elaborate uniforms and bearing the banners and other insignia of their respective orders, and when the cortege finally moves, wending its way at times through miles of the city's streets, it is followed by a mad rush of men, women and children, who block the thoroughfares, and traffic for the time being has to be suspended. The hope of such a funeral is the inspiration of many a negro's whole life. He slaves and deprives himself of actual necessities for years to meet the demands of the collectors of the societies in order that he may go to his last resting place in the midst of such strangely weird pageantry.-Charleston Letter

Hymns at $500 a Yard.

A musical composer once said to Mr. Sankey with more frankness than courtesy that he could write such tunes as those of the "Gospel Hymnbook" by the yard if he were willing to come down to it. Mr. Sankey quietly replied, "Well, sir, all I have to say is that I am willing to pay five hundred. dollars a yard, either to you or to anybody else, for all the tunes you can bring me like those in our 'Gospel Hymnbook.' Nature "makes at things beautiful in their time." Every one of life's easons, when life moves on Nature's lines, has its own charm and beauty. Many women dread that period when they must experience change of life. They fear that face and form may suffer by the change, and that they may fail to please those whom they The value of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription in this crisis of woman's life lies in the fact that it assists Nature. Its use preserves the balance and buoyancy of the mind and sustains the physical powers. Many women have expressed their gratitude for the help and comfort given by 'Favorite Prescription" in this trying period. Its benefits are not passing but permanent and conduce to mental happiness as well as physical strength,

CHARACTER IN FEET.

What One's Pedal Extremities Tell

the Observing Person. Character displayed in the feet is the subject of an article in The Ladies' Magazine. It is curious, says the writer, how much individuality is expressed by the feet, which are in many ways as clear an index to character as the hand. Are there not cruel feet, vulgar feet, artistic feet, honest feet and feet of every nature, varying according to the disposition of their owner?
For instance, there is a broad, square toed, squat foot which always goes with a phlegmatic temperament, and there is a long, narrow, pointed foot which acpanies an artistic soul and a "sen" foot which stamps the vegetarian. We have all met and felt sorry for the woman who wears large sixes and will cycle in a short white pique skirt and white shoes. Gouty feet accompany the gouty temper and generally "cussed" dispositions of cruel fathers-in-law, while a ponderous, white stockinged, elastic sided, cloth covered foot can only belong to a certain type of charwoman. Why do policemen always have such large feet? Why does a particularly aggressive person who generally wears side whiskers and a prosperous look always go about in creaking soles? Why do we always associate genius with

One of the most charming little bits of word painting imaginable, too, conjured up by Sir John Suckling's bride, whose shabby boots?

Feet beneath her petticoats, Like little mice, stole in and out. A large footed heroine is impossible, but out of books she is probably more common than the other kind, and the atmosphere of romance which wraps the nursing profession is cruelly dispelled by the knowledge that most of the votaries are flat footed. More honor to them that they have become so in consequence of their arduous duties, but it is a sad fact, nevertheless, that hospital nurses seldom or never have pretty feet. One advantage we women possess over men is that we can conceal our telltale feet under our skirts, for, alas, we cannot all be Cinderellas, and the age of the little glass slipper is overpast.

A wise woman should not only consider whether the man suits her, but whether she is going to suit the environments in which she will be placed. She should not marry a clubman if she is going to shed tears over his sarcastic remarks on her housekeeping.

She must not marry a clergyman unless she has spiritual grace enough to wear last year's bonnet, because the congregation disapproves of frivolity in other people.

She should never marry a vain man unless her flattery is of such an intoxicating brand it will make every other woman's seem like stale beer beside champagne frappe. She should not marry an adored only son unless she is prepared to battle with selfishness, or a brother with many sisters unless she has made up her mind to wait on him hand and foot. She should not marry a lawyer if she has an insatiable curiosity about other people's secrets, or an author if she is going to go through the harrowing process of measuring herself up against her

The Rainy Wedding Day.

The adage "Happy is the bride that the sun shines on" is one that is un-known in many lands. A British bride takes it unhappily when the day of her wedding dawns bright and sunny. King of Italy's Governess. The king of Italy's great regard for England and English customs is due, no doubt, to the fact that he was brought up by an English governess, Mrs. Lee, who had almost entire charge of his education during his early boyhood. It was said by a clever Frenchman that an amusing conversation could never begin in a room where the furniture was symmetrically in order. The moment your guests are gone from any social assembly study the natural disorder in which they have left the room and take this as a hit for future combina-

Good manners are the absolutely transparent medium of conveying to the world the benevolence of a good heart; good manners involve and being-body and soul and spirit, heart and mind, imagination and conscience, discrimination and judgment. Name in New York. Among the young Canadians who are making a name for themselves in New York is Mr. Arthur Heming, whose powers as an illustrator are not unknown to Canadian readers Mr. Heming was born at Paris, Ont., Jan. 17th, 1871. His family moved to Hamilton when he was in his tenth year. Office work was his first employment, but the passion of drawing things, which had shown itself in his very infancy, was destined to find greater opportunities for development in the larger community. He was among the first pupils of the newly-formed Hamil-ton Art School, but after a few weeks' study he was advanced to the position of teacher, and continued to teach until his twentieth year. Long before this period he had determined to make Canadian wild life his particular study, and at every oppor-tunity he took such trips as his means would permit, in order study the wild creatures of the fields dreadful sufferer from Eczema. But let him put as much time, study and energy into his business after he is 50 or 60, as he did in his younger days, and the probability is he will be more sought ter than he ever was in earlier life. The lesson is obvious. No preacher should presume to trade simply upon capital accumulated in his youthful days. If he does, he will certainly become bankrupt, and justly so. The preacher must make full proof of his ministry by laying a broad and deep foundation of knowledge, building wisely upon it, and making life-long additions to the superstructure. Canadian Baptist.
