Why a Harpooner is Also a Taber.

Among the old New Bedford whalling families was that of the Tabers. In speaking of this fact to a representative of the family the other day, a man who is a member of a well known New Bedford family himself, said:

"In the old whalling days the harpooners who sailed out of New Bedford were very often of your name. After a time the name Taber came to be the generic title of any harpooner, whatever his name might be. Even to this day a famous harpooner is known as a Taber."

been practically stamped out by the action of the Indian Government, cases occasionally occur, says The London Telegraph. Of the most recent, which took place in Behar, an account is given below, showing that the horrible custom is still regarded with approval by many Hindus.

The report of the magistrate, who committed the perpetrators for trial, contains the following passages: "The evidence goes to show that one Chaudhri Missir, alias Chatturbhuj Missir, a Brahmin of Sanchari village, having died on October 8 last, arrangements were made for the cremation of his body at the Devi Sthan' of that place, on the banks of a small river. A plece was cut in the ground in the shape of a St. Andrew's cross, and the funeral pyre was built over it. The body being laid on the pyre, the widow having bathed in the river and adorned herself as for marriage, took her seat on the pyre, and called on her son, the accused Juggernath Missir, to do his duty as a devout Hindu. Juggernath lighted some wheat stocks, and, having walked round the pyre three times, applied, according to custom, the fire to the mouth of the deceased. This failed to ignite the pyre, and it is said that he and the four Brahmins accussed, viz., Balkisun Missir, Dwarka Missir, Ram Charan Missir and Lachman Tewari—performed the Humad, which consisted of the burning of incense and the placing of lighted chips of wood, dipped in ghee, under the pyre until it ignited. By this time a vast crowd had assembled. As the smoke from the incense ascended and the flames reached the widow, she is said to have moved about or writhed, and finally to have stood up and turned toward the setting sun, but immediately fell hack on the pyre or writhed, and finally to have stood

OF SORE EYES

Baby Treated at Two Hospitals Over a Year-Eyes Grew Worse-Doctor Said They Might Be Bad for Years.

ONE BOX OF CUTICURA MAKES COMPLETE CURE

"When my little girl was a few months old, her eyes began to get bad; thinking it was from her teeth, I lived in hopes of them getting better, but as they did not improve I decided to get medical advice. I took her to the Hospital several times, and subsequently to the Children's Hospital several times, and subsequently to the Children's Hospital at —, to which institution I took her for twelve months. The doctors were most kind and attentive, and did all they could for her, but her eyes seemed to be growing worse. One doctor told me they might be bad for years; I was very miscrable at such a prospect. I was one day stopped in the street by a Mrs. Todd, who told me that Cuticura Ointment had cured her boy, and advised me to try it. I commenced using it that very night. The cure has been marvelous. The cyes soon commenced to get strong, and they are now as healthy as if there had never been anything the matter with them. The cure was completed with less than one box of Cuticura Ointment. You are at liberty to publish this letter, and I trust it may pieted with less than one box of Cuti-cura Ointment. NORWAY AND SWEDEN. Danger of Disunion - Accession

Prince Gustav - History of the Twe Countries.

There is danger that the long-drawnout quarrel between Norway and Sweden over a separate consular system for Norway, may disrupt the bond of union between the two countries. Both have for the last five years been preparing for the conflict, making extraordinary army appropriations, and now that King Oscar, of Sweden, who has been friendly to Norway, has appointed his eldest son, Crown Prince Gustav, as regent, war seems more probable, as the latter has always been in favor of forcing Norway to retain the present system, by remaining in the union.

Town Prince Gustav is underhave a secret understanding when the property would be a secret understanding the major william, which would bring Germany into the threatened donflict. the Two Countries.

King Oscar's Rule.

King Oscar's Rule.

A short time ago Crown Prince Gustav said in a public speech in Stockholm, that he would like nothing better than to lead a Swedish army into Norway and force the Norwegians to remain in the union. His appointment as regent, in the face of these recently expressed gentiments, may, therefore, be taken as ominous.

The retirement of the venerable King Oscar II. of Sweden and Norway, at this particular time, removes from the arena of international policies the man who has been called the ablest ruler of the age, and who his certainly been the most democratic king that ever flued. As referee in national complications, he had had an importance in world politics out of all proportion to the rank of his kingdom and at home he has ruled with perhaps greater tact and diplomacy than any at home he has ruled with perhaps greater tact and diplomacy than any other sovereign. He has, however, been unable to firmly weld together his two kingdoms, and now, at the moment when they are more ready than ever be-fore to fly at each other's throat, he has given up his power to his eldest son.

Basis of the Union. Norway was for 400 years, until 1814, joined by an act of union to Denmark, and had for 100 years before that been and had for 100 years before that been a sovereign kingdom. Therefore, when it was, in 1814, ceded to Sweden by the Danish King, Frederick VI, the Norwegians repudiated the terms of the cesion, and a short war took place, ending in the defeat of the Norwegians. A bond of union was drawn up, however, under which Norway was to be a "free, independent and indivisible kingdom, united with Sweden under one king."

Over and over again effectively bear

Over and over again attempts have been made to amend this act of union, but it has remained intact. Norway has always successfully resented. Swedish attempts to meddle in Norwegian affairs, and, except that there is one king and a combined execution. and a combined consular service, the two kingdoms have nothing in common They have separate and distinct consti-tutions ad cabinets, armies, navies and flags, and a subject of either country is a foreigner in the other. Norwegians feel that in a number of ways they are at a disadvantage in the union. Cause of Trouble.

showed itself by sweet words, at an other by soothing a sobbing child. None but she saw those things. None but she saw those them. That was the secret of her blessed power. The woman who, whatever her station in life may be, will be found in trial capable of great acts of love is ever the one who is always doing small ones."

When we hear of other people's troubles it reconciles us to our own.

TAKE MY CURE,

WHEN CURED YOU PAY ME

They have been for 70 years quarrelling over the question of separate diplomatic services, and the issue is to day more grave than ever before. Nothing was settled in the act of union of 1814 as to diplomatic intercourse, and the Swedish diplomatic service has almost a swere appointed to regent posts, and because the Swedish Minister of Foreign Affairs could not be held responsible by Norway. Three years ago committees were appointed by each country to consider the diplomatic service question, but they recently reported that they were unable to agree. The result. They have been for 70 years quarrel-from Sweden.

A few days ago Premier Hagerup, of Norway, addressing the Storthing at Christiania, said he regretted that the negotiations between Sweden and Norway on this question had failed. The situation, he added, was very serious. The present conditions could not be continued without endangering the relations between the two countries. Norway must therefore make provision for taking up the national and international position to which she is entitled as a sovereign state. If this could not be achieved within the terms of the existing treaty of union new forms for the co-operation of the nations must be considered.

Admiral Sir Nowell Salmon.

After serving in the British navy for the long term of 58 years Admiral Sir Nowell Salmon has retired on attaining his seventieth year. Sir Nowell, says The London Express, who joined the service in 1847, served in the Baltic during the Russian war, and in Peel's Brigade during the Indian mutiny. He captured the filipuster Walker while in command of H. M. S. Icarus for which he recieved a gold medal from the Central American States. He was commander-in-Chief at the Cape from 1882 to 1885; in China from 1884 to 1897, the last year including the Jubilee review. In consequence of Sir Nowell Salmon's retirement, Admiral Seymour succeeds to the Devonport command, and hoisted his flag on the Impregnable as Admiral of the fleet. The flag was saluted by Vice-Almiral Henderson from the Cambridge, and several other ships signaled congratulatory messages.

Baby's Short Clothes. When mother is making baby's short clothes she will find it a great saving ciones ane will ind it a great saving of labor if she will do these two things—make the neckbands of the little dresses a trifle larger than neces-sary, then draw very narrew tape through. When making the sleeves cut them a little longer than needed and sew two herizontal tucks below the elbow. Baby grows very fast, and as the arms lengthen the tucks can be let out and the tape is not drawn so tight, In this way the dresses will last much longer without being outgrown.

Prince Gustav has been temporary regent 4wice since 1909, during periods when the King was dangerously sick. His mother was Princess Sophia of Nassau, and he is one of four sons. Although Gustav has hardly shown his hand as yet, it is thought that he is less liberal than his father. In 1991 Oscar granted the liberal demands, which Gustav opposed.
