Mr. Auin, late Editor of the Fantusque, last night commenced a series of lectures and experiments on chemistry, at the City Hotel, St. Ann Street.

On Monday some rocket practice took place on the ice at the mouth of the St. Charles, under the direction of Captain Armstrong, Royal Artillery, in presence of Major General Sir James Macdonnell, Lieut-nant-Colonel Kirby, R. A., many Officers of the Garrison, and a great number of spectators. The practice was made at a great distance from the shores and the ice roads, as the formidable missiles had been in store since 1815, and there was some uncertainty as to their working properly. They appear, however, to have sustained but little injury from the length of time they have been made up, and the heavier rockets, especially, were thoroughly effective and showed the terrific destruction they spread when in order and properly employed; against wood- buildings or block houses their effects must be irresistible, and we learn that a supply accompanied the last reinforcements which marched from this Garrison to New Brunswick. Mr. Fairfield's warriors, should they be exposed to their operation, may find the wooden walls of their log pen a berth too hot to be agreeable.—Mercury.

We felt much satisfaction on the last two Sundays, in witnessing the procession of that very splendid body of men, the gallant 93d Highlanders, to St. Andrew's Church in this city, to attend divine service, each soldier provided with his Bible. This fine corps, wherever it has served, has borne a moral as well as a military character second to none in the service. They march to church without music.—Toronto Colonist.

The Emperor of Russia has given orders to export the surplus corn of his vast territories, in order to assist foreign nations who are in great want of that essential article. On the 20th December there were at Odessa 124 English, French, Italian and Spanish vessels taking in cargoes of wheat and barley. All the other harbours of the Black sea are equally encumbered with vessels for the same purpose.

The King of the Two Sicilies has also permitted the exportation of corn from his dominions.
