A week before the 1896 Valentine dis-A week before the low vaterine dispatch from Irkutsk, Siberia, Russia, reached Mrs. Nansen at Christiania, Norway, that her intrepid husband, Dr., Fridtjof Nansen, had reached the North Pole, had found land there and North Pole, had round and there and was returning to civilization, the Nortwegian Government was seriously considering the question of sending out an expedition for his relief or for confirmation of his death by drifting north polewards. Airs. Nansen, who is a daughter of Sars, the Norwegian naturalist and a champing "ski!" runner, as daughter of Sars, the Norwegian naturalist, and a champion "ski" runner, as is her distinguished husband, was to have gone with Dr. Nansen in his expedition of drifting across the North Pole in the Fram, which set out from Christiana on June 24, 1893, but Nansen dissuaded her, and she remained at home with her daughter, then only a few months old. While in her mind there is a reservation of doubt, she is profoundly honeful, that the news is Formerly it was the novelty of Dr. Nansen's idea of reaching the North Pole that gave his expedition interest to the scientific world, for interest it had none for the ordinary public. Now, that possible success may have crowned his idea, all this is changed, and no one can seriously doubt the existence of the deep interest everybody really feels towards the North Pole and its mysterious message to the world, if it sterious message to the world, if it ever delivered. A SAD CASE.

James Scott, an Old-Time Toronto Merchant, Deliberately Commits Suicide.

James Scott, for many years a drygoods merchant in Toronto, deliberately suicided by Jumping 120 feet to the ground from the highest of the Rosedale bridges at the second ravine, at about 11 o'clock on Saturday morning.

Deceased left his home at 90 Carltonstreet shortly after breakfast and went out presumably for a stroll. His family never saw him all've afterwards. The suicidal Jump was witnessed by several people, who were on the bridge and whose stories all show the act to have been premeditated.

Mr. Scott was 72 years of age, and came here from Peebles, Scotland, over 60 years ago. He was a handsome and dignified old gentleman, always scrupulously dressed, and bearing the air of a man well-to-do and living a happy life. His home at 90 Carlton-street is a beautiful place.

He leaves a widow, five grown up children, two sons, James and Robert, and three daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Charles Cockshutt, the others being unmarried. Mr. Robert Scott has been in England and sailed on Saturday from Liverpool for New York. He is, therefore, ungware of the sad death of his father.

Mr. Scott was a gentleman of the old school, and in business and financial circles he bore a reputation for unfilmching probity. For 4 years he had been in business in Toronto of Mr. Scott's unfortunate venture of Mr. Scott's unfortunate venture of Mr. Scott's unfortunate ventures of the sad been in business in Toronto.

Mr. Scott's increasing age prevented him taking a sufficiently active part in affairs to stem the tide of competition from the departmental stores, and the profits gradually decreased, until a year ago the firm decided to retire. A few months ago the stock was sold to W. A. Murray & Co., and Mr. Scott retired. He still had a generous fortune, however, and will leave probably $100,000.
