POINTED QUESTIONS.

Put Yourself in the Other One's Place and Answer.
The great task of sound ethics is to stimulate the social imagination. We must be continually prodding our sense of social consequence to keep it wide awake. We must be asking ourselves at each point of contact with the lives of others such pointed questions as these:

How would you like to be the tailor or washerwoman whose bill you have neglected to pay?

How would you like to be the customer to whom you are selling these adulterated or inferior goods?

How would you like to be the investor in this stock company which you are promoting with water?

How would you like to be the employer whose time and tools and material you are wasting at every chance you get to loaf and shirk and neglect the duties you are paid to perform?

How would you like to be the clerk or saleswoman in the store where you are reaping extra dividends by imposing harder conditions than the state of trade and the market compel you to adopt?

How would you like to be the stoker or weaver or mechanic on the wages you pay and the conditions of labor you impose?

How would you like to be the business rival whom you deprive of his life all by using your greater wealth in temporary cutthroat competition?—William De Witt Hyde in Atlantic.

What Washington Looks.
There is no avenue in Washington which measures adequately up to the full demands of civic beauty. Woodward avenue in Detroit, Euclid avenue in Cleveland, Peachtree avenue in Atlanta, Independence avenue in Kansas City and Summit avenue in St. Paul are all examples of handsome thoroughfares, where magnificent private residences are set in miniature parks. On a larger scale Brookline, near Boston, presents a charming picture of suburban development along picturesque and artistic lines. There is nothing of the kind in Washington.

An Artist's Trials.
Brownly—Dauber certainly has his own troubles.
Pinder—Why, I thought he was doing splendidly.
Brownly—He was until he painted that last landscape. He painted the sun in too natural.
Pinder—How could that be?
Brownly—Well, it dries up the water in the pond so fast that he has to paint in new water every two or three days.

Invitation.
"I suppose in the collecting business," said the inquisitive man, "nearly every man you go to see asks you to call again."
"Ask me?" replied the collector.
"Some of them dare me."

The Wary Purchaser.
Mrs. Youngwood—And what are these? Dealer—Salt mackerel, mum.
Mrs. Y.—Are they quite fresh?

A. F. PIRIE SHOOTS HIMSELF

Well-Known Editor of Dundas Banner Attempts Suicide.

Found by His Cousin, Who Heard a Shot While Waiting For Him to Go For a Stroll, With Blood Streaming From a Hole in His Temple—Held Photograph of His Dead Wife in His Hand—His Newspaper Career.

Hamilton, Aug. 10.—Alex. F. Pirie, editor of The Dundas Banner, who is well known all over the Dominion, shot himself Saturday evening about 9 o'clock. At a late hour last evening the doctors held out a faint hope of his recovery.

It is supposed that grief over his wife's death led him to make the attempt on his life. He had spent the evening with his cousin, Robinson Pirie, of the W. E. Sanford Company, and T. H. Begue. The three had sat chatting for some time. Mr. Begue went home and Robinson Pirie suggested a stroll. "Wait a minute, I'll run upstairs," was his cousin's reply to the suggestion. In a few minutes Robinson Pirie was started to hear a shot. He hurried upstairs to find his cousin stretched out on the floor with the blood streaming from a bullet hole in his temple. The wounded man had evidently placed the weapon close to his head, for the bullet went right through the brain. Robinson Pirie rushed out for Dr. Ross. When they returned they found the injured man sitting up on the bed. He held a photograph of his dead wife in his hand and was looking fondly at it. In answer to questions, he made muttered replies, in which his wife's name was repeated over and over again, but he could give no connected account of what led him to shoot himself. He remained in this semiconscious condition until about 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

A. F. PIRIE.

Mr. Pirie is about 50 years of age. He has a family of four sons, three of whom are in Manitoba.

BRILLIANT SCENE AT ROME

Great Throng Received and Acclaimed New Pope in St. Peter's.

His Holiness Was Tranquil and Passed Through the Fatiguing Ceremonies With Grace and Dignity—Received the Pontifical Pallium and Donned the Triple Crown Amid the Acclamations of the vast Multitude.

Rome, Aug. 10.—The ceremony of the coronation of Pope Pius X. took place yesterday in the Basilica of St. Peter's, in the presence of the princes and high dignitaries of the church, diplomats and Roman nobles, and with all the solemnity and splendor associated with this, the most magnificent rite in the Roman Catholic Church.

At 6 a.m. the ringing bells announced the imminent opening of doors. A gigantic crowd had waited for hours and the police and Italian soldiers had a difficult task to maintain order as the crushing and fatigue had begun to tell upon the patience of the people. When the doors opened, the thrush was terrible, many of whom started from the bottom steps outside were lifted off their feet and carried into the cathedral. It was a great human torrent let loose. Women fainted in comparatively large numbers and even men were overcome by the heat, but no serious accidents were reported.

Inside the Vatican palace there was no less movement and bustle as the Papal procession, composed of about 500 people, was formed.

The central figure in the long cortege was Pius X., borne in the Sedia Gestatoria. His heavy white robes and the red and gold mitre were worn without an effort. Over the Pontiff's head a canopy was held by eight men, while the historic ostrich feather fans with peacock tips gave a touch of barbaric splendor to western eyes.

The Pontiff was exceedingly pale, but composed his emotion. Cardinal Rampolla advanced with dignity, knelt and kissed the foot of the Pontiff. He then presented in a firm voice the wishes and greetings of the Chapter of St. Peter. The Pontiff answering in a trembling voice, warmly thanked the chapter for their well wishes. The procession then reformed and proceeded to the door of the Basilica. On the appearance of the Pontiff himself it seemed as though the people would seek to carry him in their arms, so great was their enthusiasm. Cries of "Pius, our Pope, our father," and "Long live Pius X." were raised, notwithstanding the large placards posted all over the Basilica, saying: "Acclamations are forbidden."

The cries were continued until the Pontiff was compelled to rise and bless the multitude, and at the same time he made a sign for more reverential behavior.

The procession then proceeded, the Pope's face meanwhile illuminated by a smile. At the chapel of the sacrament, there was another halt and His Holiness left the Sedia Gestatoria, and prayed awhile at the altar. On re-entering the chair, he carried to the chapel of St. Gregory, where he officiated at a mass.

From the throne Pius X. surrounded by his suite, walked to the high altar, standing over the crypt of St. Peter, into which meanwhile Cardinal Macchi descended to pray. Returning from the crypt Cardinal Macchi placed upon the shoulders of the Pope the pontifical pallium and attached it with three golden jewelled pins.

Mass was then celebrated with great pomp and ceremony, the voice of the Pope becoming gradually firm and sonorous until it was even audible in the most distant corner of the immense church. The Holy Father then walked to the shrine of St. Peter for the culminating rites of the extremely fatiguing ceremony. The sacred college gathered about the Pope singing "Palastrine's corona aurea super caput ejus," while the choir burst forth into song, giving the dramatic touch. Cardinal Macchi then recited the "Peter Noster" and offered the following prayer:

"Omnipotent and ever eternal God, dignity of the clergy and author of sovereignty, grant thy servant, Pius X. grace to fruitfully govern thy church so that he, who by thy clemency, becomes and is crowned as father of kings and rector of all the faithful, through thy wise disposition may govern well."

"Amen" rang out from all corners of the Cathedral.

Cardinal Deacon Segna then raised the Pontiff's mitre and Senator Cardinal Deacon Macchi placed on the venerable white head the triple crown. At this moment the church was filled with the ringing of bells, the blowing of silver trumpets, the triumphant strains of the choir and the acclamations of the multitude, which could no longer be repressed.

Pope Pius was quite overcome and had scarcely strength left to impart the apostolic benediction. Cardinals Macchi and Segna granted a plenary indulgence to all present, and the procession then reformed and left the Basilica in the same form as it came.
