"NONPAREIL"
Billiard Hall!
SHARKEY'S BUILDING,
OPP. OFFICERS' BARRACKS, QUEEN ST., FREDERICTON, N. B.

I. E. FOSTER, Proprietor

THIS HALL has been newly fitted up, and handomely furnished, and for room, light, ventilation and neatness, compares most favorably with any Billiard Hall in the Dominion. The Billiard and Pool Tables are pronounced by players to be superior to any now in use in this Province.
They are the BRILLIANT NOVELTY, size 6 x 9 feet.
The main object in the construction of the Billiard Novelty, and the one most noticeable, is that it embodies all the more salient or most important features that have rendered popular all the other styles of tables of the J. M. Brunswick & Co. make. The Brilliant Novelty has all the advantages and good points, including the respective inlays claimed by the "Nonpareil" and "Exposition" Tables. The Brilliant Novelty is a happy combination of all those celebrated tables, and has rapidly taken the foremost place in the estimation of all players of Billiard and Pool Tables. The Novelty is fitted and handomely inlaid in many different colors, made up from African Mahogany, Ash, Walnut, Bird's Eye Maple, Mahogany, Rose Wood, Tulip Wood and Ebony. It is supplied with the finest of Vermont Slate bed, Simons Cloth, and a first-class outfit of everything necessary. A call is respectfully solicited from lovers of the game.
Boys under sixteen not allowed in the Hall.
Temperance drinks of all kinds. Cigars, etc.

HANLAN'S DEFEAT.
The Contest on the Pocomtunk River, Sydney, N. S. W., in August.
(From the South Australian Advertiser.) The race was witnessed by upward of 10,000 spectators, and the greatest excitement prevailed. It was 4 1/2 o'clock when Hanlan, wearing a blue sleeveless guernsey, stepped into his boat. Beach, who striped to his waist, shortly afterward rowed up from his training quarters. Hanlan's weight was within half a pound of 11 stones. Beach's weight was 12 stone.
Both competitors appeared in splendid condition. The umpire was P. J. Clark, one of the best judges in Australia. They made a splendid start, both catching water at the same moment, and taking almost stroke for stroke from 32 to 35 per minute. Hanlan's stroke was cleanest and neatest. Beach, though equally effective, being somewhat flurried for the first hundred yards. Hanlan from the first appeared to settle down to his work as a very serious business, showing his teeth closed firmly and his lips parted in such a peculiar way that it gave the impression at a distance that he was smiling. From the start he kept closely watching Beach, with whom he kept almost on a dead level for some distance.
After a quarter of a mile's level pulling, Hanlan quickened his stroke and went a length ahead. He then slowed down in accordance with his ordinary custom, and just about maintained the same lead, going a little faster when his opponent drew closer, and easing off again when he seemed getting too far ahead. After passing the first point on the southern side and getting into comparatively open water, where the full force of the breeze caught both, they became rather unsteady, an occasional splash showing that the wind and the somewhat rough water inconvenienced them.

About this period of the contest a most unfortunate incident occurred. The steamer Tomki, which had been chartered by Beach's supporters for the visiting, was heading right across Hanlan's track in midstream. Hanlan pulled right up to within a few feet of the steamer's side being slightly ahead of Beach, whose course just enabled him to miss the steamer's bow. As Hanlan came up close a thousand voices called to him to be ware of being swamped, and, as he turned in his seat and looked ahead, he saw the danger in a moment, and resolved to cut Beach right out of the race. Heading the boat right across Beach's course, he put on a magnificent spurt that passed the bows at a marvellous speed.
He had then put between four and five lengths between himself and his opponent. To the spectators this seemed to give the race to Hanlan to win as he liked and a few incidents which occurred in the rowing just afterward were interpreted as acts of bravado, when, as Hanlan now states, they were signs of distress. Shortly after he had finished his great spurt he half dropped his left scull, but recovered himself almost immediately. He had not gone a quarter of a mile before he made a partial stoppage, entirely missing his stroke. This gave the impression that he was pulling well within himself, that he had gauged Beach's powers, and he had satisfied himself of his own ability to keep in front by responding whenever Beach spurted, and that he could play with his opponent.

Hanlan's explanation after the race was over is that, in that big spurt, when he cleared the steamer, he exhausted himself, and that, so far from showing off, he was in a distressed condition.
This statement is borne out by Beach, who states that when Hanlan went so far to the front on that occasion he began to regard it as a hopeless contest until he turned and saw Hanlan's face, and the sight of his opponent's face showed clearly that Hanlan was giving out. This sent the thought through Beach's mind like a flash of lightning:
"The race is mine." Acting under that impulse, as well as in accordance with his trainer's directions, he put on just such a spurt as Hanlan had done. With half a dozen quick and powerful strokes he brought the boat right down on Han-lan, who had worked across into Beach's water, and was so exhausted that he could not respond to Beach's pace and pull out of the way, the consequence of which was a foul. The boats did not touch, but Hanlan's left scull and Beach's right scull crossed each other and prevented both from sculling. For a moment both boats were on a dead level, and either man had an equal chance of getting away first; in fact, when they freed their inter-locked sculls they could have restarted on exactly equal terms, but Hanlan was not equal to the emergency, and held up his hands to claim a foul, by which act he clearly lost a stroke.
Then he halted for a few seconds, as if hesitating whether to go on or give up the race. This gave Beach a lead of five or six lengths, which he never really lost during the rest of the race. Once Han-lan made a fierce attempt to overtake Beach, and actually got within three boats' lengths, but his condition then appeared to give out, and he fell away.
Beach pulled hard, but as he was never nearly pushed, there is every reason to credit his statement that he could have pulled much harder. He certainly finished in a fine condition, which is more than can be said of Hanlan.

Beach passed the flagpost nearly six lengths ahead, and as soon as the um-pire's boat came up Hanlan pulled alongside and said: "Mr. Clark, I claim a foul." Mr. Clark promptly responded:
"You got over into Beach's water; that caused the foul, and I gave the race to Beach."

Afterward the two men met in the most friendly manner. Hanlan looked a little careworn and discouraged, as was only natural under the circumstances.
The conversation, of course, turned upon the race, and Hanlan, in a manner which it was pleasant to see, said, shaking hands with Beach: "Well, you are a better man than I am, and I hope you don't blame me for the foul, which was principally caused through the steamer coming down on us. I could not help it."

The Latest Fashion in Garters.
(From the Baltimore Sun.)
"There are several styles in garters this season," said a prominent dealer yesterday. "Here, for instance, are some pretty pale-blue, white and pink ones, which are made of satin-finished elastic and painted with roses and sprays of vines. You see they fasten with buckles, and can be made larger or smaller as necessity requires. The buckle was invented for obvious reasons. No, they are not worn in front—that is, not directly in front.
The buckle comes a little to one side, and on the other side is a dainty knot of ribbon, sometimes a bow and sometimes frilled."

"But I think these are prettier; they are embroidered and are usually made to order. A wider scope is given here for the display of taste and originality than in the others. The embroidery is not done on the elastic, but upon ribbon in which the elastic is encased. Any design in small flowers, such as forget-me-nots and training arbutus, may be used with charming effect. Many ladies buy the material and work the designs themselves. Now, here are some upon which the ribbon, instead of being embroidered, is printed. Prices range from $1 to $5 per pair."

"Do the buckles ever come separate from the garters?"
"Oh, yes," was the reply. "The handsomest buckles are only used when specially ordered. They are generally sold by jewellers. Some are of plain gold or silver, and some are studded with jewels. The most fashionable now are those set with Rhinestones. A beautiful pair that I recently saw are of solid gold, with forget-me-nots in blue enamel. An ingenious device to shield the flesh from bruises is a scented pad, soft and tiny, which is placed under the buckle."

Halifax Girls and the Army.
Halifax Letter in N. Y. Express.
The soldiers are great beaux. The hearts of female Halifaxians, high and low, beat faster in the presence of these uniformed gallants. Her Majesty forbids common soldiers to marry without a permit from their superiors. There are nine laundresses to each company, and they are always soldiers' wives, mothers, or daughters. Fifteen extra wives are allowed to a division. The unhappy martial Romeo is obliged to put his name on a list, and wait his turn for leave to marry.
He may have acted his part to a dozen Julietes before the time comes when his sweetheart can be appointed a regimental washerwoman. Special privileges in the pay of marrying are allowed to old soldiers and to those who have distinguished themselves by bravery. Many of the soldiers marry without permission.
The officers discipline the unlicensed bridegroom a little while, but the punishment is not sufficiently severe to prevent the practice. The wife, however, suffers when her soldier husband is ordered to some distant station of the British Empire and she is left to follow him as best she may.

GOV. ST. JOHN'S PARTY.
The Prohibitionists Appoint a Day for Fasting and Humiliation.
Chicago, Oct. 7.—The following will be issued to-morrow:
To the People of the United States: In view of the misery and crime resulting from alcoholism, and of the guilt fastened upon the people by Governments—municipal, State, and national—by permitting and even licensing the traffic in poison drinks, the Executive Committee of the Prohibition party call upon the people of this country to observe Wednesday, Oct. 25, as a day of fasting, humiliation, and confession; and in view of the fact that many all over the land are aroused and realize the enormity of the liquor crime, and are willing to be at cost and pains to put it away, we call upon all Christian believers to unite in prayer to Almighty God that His aid may be given to measures which will result in the speedy putting away of this guilt, and the suppression of the traffic in alcoholic drinks.
JOHN B. FISK, Chairman.

The Jewish Philanthropist.
Sir Moses Montefiore, the well-known Jewish philanthropist, continues in good health. He still manages a large correspondence, and transacts a good deal of business. His wonderful memory is but little impaired, but the severe illness of last spring has left a weakness which occasionally causes anxiety to his friends.
When strong enough to receive them, he derives much pleasure from the visits of his friends, whom he entertains with much of his old vivacity and eloquence.
Sir Moses will complete his 100th year on Oct. 24.
