MOTIVES.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Did you ever come to charity frankly confessed to me that he did it because he was afraid his prosperity would cease if he didn't. I call this the superstitious motive, and I think it is a little better than the Pharisaical one, but not much.

Still others give because they hope to be rewarded for going so. Some expect an immediate earthly reward in the shape of prosperity and earthly desires fulfilled. Others hope to buy a ticket to heaven with their alms. Does that seem like a satisfactory motive to you? I must say it, doesn't quite content me. It is too much like investing money with the expectation of getting very high interest. We deny ourselves pleasures and gratifications in the fleeting to-day because we believe we shall thereby win for ourselves greater pleasures and gratifications in the eternal to-morrow. And yet, since much of religion is built on just that motive, I don't quite dare cavil at it.

To be generous toward your fellow-men because you cannot approve of yourself unless you are, seems to me a really satisfactory motive. There is only one higher, if it is higher, and that is to do things for your fellow-men because you love them and want to help them.

I can't quite decide which of these two motives is the higher. The first involves effort, the second implies a naturally beautiful character. "White souls without stain or blot who do the will of God and know it not." Perhaps the best way to rank these two is to say that the first is a nobler motive, and the second more beautiful.

From what motive do your kind acts come?

We are apt to think of an act of charity as a fixed quantity representing a certain amount of merit. It seems to me in reality that the act itself is only one of the factors. There are other factors which must be considered in reckoning the final product. And the motive behind the deed is one of the most important.

The lowest motive for charity is that of the Pharisees who did their alms "to be seen of men." If you multiply any sum, no matter how large, by zero, you still get zero. So it seems to me that the merit of Pharisaical alms, no matter how lavish, is always zero, because the value of one of the factors, the motive, is cipher.

A dominant idea of the old religion was that we should be good, because if we weren't we'd be everlastingly punished for it. Can you see much merit in being good because you are afraid you'll suffer if you aren't? And yet that is the spirit in which many people give alms; because they fear punishment here or hereafter if they withhold them. A man who religiously gave away a tenth of his in-

Fashions and Fads.

The lace neck ruffle standing upright at the back and falling softly away from the neck at the front, is a favored fashion in many suits.

A new device on many suits is to bind the upper half of the buttonhole with a band of one color, and the lower with another harmonizing color.

A pretty hat is covered with white crepe and trimmed with white picot-ed ribbon. The front is finished with a small bunch of colored flowers.

The new colors in tailored suits are Chinese blue, Bulgarian green, wood brown, light and dark greys, terra cotta, rose, brick and other tones of red.

The little coat is a great feature. It often has bolero fronts and is more or less coat-tailored at the back. Some extend no more than three inches below the waist line.

Chic afternoon dresses and tailored suits have draped and half-pleated tunic skirts trimmed with silk soutache. The short boleros and coats show embroideries.

There are dozens of cutaway styles, from the quiet conservative two-buttoned dip-back model to the one almost duplicating the coat of a man's evening dress suit.

A pretty Russian hair ornament is made of narrow black velvet, lightly set with tiny brilliants, with a paste cabochon at one side, which holds a black mercury wing in position.

Black patent leather shoes, with white tops, are worn with the tailored suits. There are also little short-toed slippers, in antelope, ribbed silk, doeskin and thick satin.

WOMEN, AVOID OPERATIONS

Many Unsuccessful — And Worse Suffering Often Follows. Mrs. Rock's Case A Warning.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will show how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when often it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has restored the health of thousands of suffering women. Why don't you try it?

Respectfully yours,
JOHN B. CODY.

Cessation of work by the printers to-morrow, will bring home to residents of Belgium the capital the effects of the national strike for equal suffrage, more forcibly than the crippling of industry in other parts of the country has done. The majority of the fifteen dailies issued here will be unable to publish, while others will appear in reduced form. To-day's estimate of the number of strikers total between 250,000 and 375,000.

Suffragettes this morning took possession of the Monument, near the northern approach to London Bridge. From the topmost balcony they displayed two immense flags and an immense banner with the words, "Victory or Death." They locked themselves in, preventing the police from ascending the winding staircases of 345 steps, remaining in the iron cage erected to prevent suicides, from which they showered literature among the thousands of people who assembled. For a long time the traffic was suspended in the vicinity, which is one of London's busiest districts. The police had to obtain the services of a locksmith before the door at the bottom of the shaft could be opened. When they caught the women and appeared with them on the street, the people became so threatening that the constables were compelled to take their prisoners back into the chamber until reinforcements arrived and cleared the way for their passage to the police station. A force of a hundred police was required to protect the women from the rushes of an angry mob. They were released a short time after reaching the police station.
