Russia Rising Against Soviets.

Insurrections Are of Daily Occurrence—Revolution Wholly Popular—Simons Explains to Reichstag—Quintette of Youths to be Hanged For Treason—Auxiliary Policemen Shot.

A DOZEN INSURRECTIONS.
WARSAW, March 11. Leon Trotsky, Russian War Minister, according to Russians here who are in daily touch with their country, has offered a reward of five million rubles for the body dead or alive of General Koslovsky, the revolutionary leader in the Petrograd region. General Koslovsky in return is reported to have offered ten rubles for Trotsky's body. It is pointed out here that a million rubles is now worth about fifty dollars. A dozen more insurrections are in progress throughout Russia and the anti-Bolshevik movement daily is encouraging other uprisings, say local Russians, who, they assert, today, are gaining confidence of the ultimate success of the counter-revolutionary movement as they learn of fresh anti-Bolshevik forces appearing from Odessa northward.

LEADERS UNKNOWN.
LONDON, March 11. Leaders of the revolutionary movement now developing in Russia are entirely unknown in Russian political circles, which indicates that the movement is not political and one of the broad masses of Russian people themselves, according to Antolin Bankaioff, President of the group of Russian Social Democrats in London. M. Bankaioff to-day communicated to the British Labor leaders important private information which has filtered into Russian political and commercial circles in London, from what he characterized as most reliable sources of information in Russia.

DISCUSSING CONFERENCE.
BERLIN, March 11. Foreign Ministry Simons discussed the events of the London Reparation Conference with the Foreign Relations Committee of the Reichstag until late last evening, when the session was adjourned until to-day. Although the deliberations were supposed to be confined to the Cabinet and committee members only, it was observed that Hugo Simons, who was one of the Government's pre-conference advisers, also was present. After the meeting ended it was learned that Dr. Simons admitted having exceeded the limit which German experts thought safe in presenting counter proposals to the Entente and also that he was more optimistic than his colleagues regarding Germany's ability to float an international loan. Dr. Karl Helfferich, former Secretary of the Treasury, also a Nationalist, and Dr. Gustave Strazmann, of the People's Party, were among the Foreign Minister's critics. The Reichstag on Saturday will discuss the situation resulting from the failure of London negotiations.

SENTENCE TO DEATH.
DUBLIN, March 11. Five young men, Bernard Young, Patrick Boyle, Thomas Bryan, Frank Flood and Dermott O'Sullivan, have been sentenced to death by hanging by court martial, after being convicted of high treason in carrying on war against the King. The trials were connected with the ambush at Dromcondra in February. The Viceroy has commuted the sentence of O'Sullivan to life service on account of his youth. O'Sullivan is only seventeen years of age.

MORE MURDERS.
BELFAST, Ireland, March 11. Three auxiliary policemen from the Gorbahinstown Depot in Dublin, used for British troops, were shot outside a Music Hall here this evening while conversing with several young women. The group of men who did the shooting were not identified. The wounded men died shortly after their admission to hospital.

EXPORTS TO HOLLAND STOPPED.
AMSTERDAM, March 11. Exports from the Rhineland to Holland have stopped altogether, says the Essen correspondent of the Rotterdam newspaper, neither buyers or purchasers being willing to risk the imposition of Allies tax levies.

OBERHAUSEN OCCUPIED.
LONDON, March 11. Oberhausen, six miles East of Ruhrort and seven miles Northwest of Essen, has been entered by the Allies, according to a Central News despatch from Paris. The entry was made without incident.

First Doctors—
Then a Skin Specialist—
Then a Bottle of D.D.D.

I will consider it a favour if you will allow me to add my testimonial to the many hundreds you no doubt have in praise of the great remedy effected by the D.D.D. Prescription. I was a sufferer for two years with eczema on the legs and ankles. I tried three or four different doctors and none of them did me any good. I got tired of trying their remedies. I then went to a skin specialist but he was no better than they. I was reading the Sunday paper and happened to see your ad. I am very glad that I did. I secured a trial bottle of D.D.D. and it did me so much good that I sent for a dollar bottle, also a cake of soap. That is all I used, and I am perfectly well. I have advised several others to use it and the results have been the same. You are at liberty to use my name for I consider D.D.D. the best remedy in use.

D.D.D.
THE Lotion for Skin Disease
Revolution in Berlin.

From the beginning of March, 1848, Berlin—the Prussian capital—were an unwonted aspect, for in this city of military discipline, public meetings had been held day after day and the streets were blocked by excited crowds. Their deputations to the government received halting and evasive answers, and the excitement increased until on the 18th, encounters began between the citizens and the troops, which served to exasperate the people and their leaders, although they were insignificant. The King—Frederick William IV.—appeared to be wavering between resistance and concession until the news of the revolution in Vienna became known on the 15th, and brought affairs to their crisis. On the 17th, the tumult in the streets suddenly ceased, as it was understood that the following day would see the Government either reconciled with the people, or forced to deal with a great insurrection. On the morning of the 18th, crowds made their way to the Palace, which was surrounded by troops. A Royal edict appeared about midday summoning the Prussian United Diet for April 2, and announcing that the King had determined to promote the creation of a Parliament for all Germany, and the establishment of Constitutional Government in every German State. This drew fresh masses to the Palace, where the King vainly attempted to address them. When called upon to disperse, the multitude refused, and answered by cries for the withdrawal of the soldiers. In the midst of this confusion two shots were fired from the ranks without orders; a panic followed, in which—for no known reason—the cavalry and infantry charged the people, putting them to flight, but the combat was taken up by the populace of Berlin. Barricades appeared in the streets, and fighting continued during the evening and night. The King received deputations begging that the troops might be withdrawn from the city; he endeavored to make the surrender of the barricades the condition for an armistice; but as night went on the troops became exhausted, and though they had gained ground, the resistance of the people was not overcome. The King gave way, and at daybreak on
