With Seaplane and Motor Boat In Newfoundland and Labrador.

Extracts from the Diary of a Wanderer.

DINE WITH THE ADMIRALITY.
Skipper James told us that it was the same spot in 1889 that H. M.S. was wrecked, and some eleven years were lost. On that occasion a shipman came ashore and asked Davis to be his guide to the wreck. On the occasion of the ship's misfortune Davis heard the wreck guns, and when walking to the Point was met by a midshipman from the Raleigh who made the same request to him as his predecessor did in 1889. We returned to our motor boat, and fixing up the gear went past the Raleigh, taking down as we did so. We were able to include a party of officers flying the ensign, in a boat lying off the shore. On our return, I called on the Raleigh, which was lying in Porteau Harbour, together with the Constance and Cape Town. The Raleigh was flying the flag of the Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Sir William Pakenham, who I met in Bermuda. He was one of our greatest supporters when we were developing aviation in the West Indies. I received an invitation to dine that night, and attend a concert afterwards. I explained to the Admiral, who had the reputation of being the most particular officer on the staff in the Navy, that thanks to the ship speed boat of the Boes, I had been in the clothes I had stood up to, to wit field boots, breeches and a khaki shirt having understood that I was going to explore the wilds of Labrador, and lead a social life. Excuses were made, and Commander Ward, having promised me a rigout, I accepted the invitation.

BORROW THE BOSS' CLOTHES.
Returning to the Hawke I decided to get my own back by borrowing the boss' clothes. By the time I had been on the clothes I had stood up to, to wit field boots, breeches and a khaki shirt having understood that I was going to explore the wilds of Labrador, and lead a social life. Excuses were made, and Commander Ward, having promised me a rigout, I accepted the invitation.

he sent a kindly signal asking to be excused as the barometer was falling, and the ship's boats were consequently being hauled in. We went for a walk that afternoon, and after dining on sea trout, spent a most uncomfortable night, owing to the high wind and rough sea.

THE EDUCATION OF "STINKS."

Aug. 24th 1922.—Dull day but sea calmer. Went over to Raleigh Camp and called on Captain, getting his permission to photograph the camp. After taking pictures of the men's hammocks along under the drying codfish, we walked down to the Leane Amour Cemetery, and photographed the graves of those who had given their lives trying to get the line ashore. Then back to the camp where we found the Adams brothers, to whom the Lords of the Admiralty presented a clock to commemorate the good work and assistance given by the brothers when the Lily was wrecked. We photographed them with the clock, and with a group of the Raleigh's sailors, and some husky dogs. How the British sailor loves being photographed. After taking the groups successfully, we stood aside while a funeral party passed, carrying the body of one of the sailors who had been drowned in the upsetting of the boat. We watched his comrades silently pass into the distance as they carried him to his resting place beside his fellow heroes, and we thought that we were right in recording the incident on the film, as a record of the sacrifice that the men of the Navy have to sometimes make while carrying out their duties, in preserving the freedom of the seas to our Empire. That evening Stinks and I anchored our dingy in the mouth of the Porteau river, and as the tide ran out we caught some of the sea trout. I was glad of this as I wanted to make Stinks keen on fishing, and after this experience I think he looks on the art with more interest.

WE PHOTOGRAPH THE ADMIRAL.

Aug. 25th 1922.—Day bright, sea much calmer. Some stalwarts from the Calcutta came on board to fix our batteries and make various adjustments. Upon completing these we took them alongside, and I went on board to say good-bye to the Admiral. I was fortunate in getting him to agree to our taking a picture of him pacing his Quarter Deck with the Captain, which Stinks pulled off with quick dispatch. After saying good-bye, and declining an invitation to lunch as we were in a hurry, we steamed round the ship taking pictures, finally passing astern, and taking the Admiral waving good-bye. Turning our backs to Porteau we made towards Flower's Cove across the Straits. We were not sorry to see the last of the black and barren coasts of Southern Labrador.

I AM ATTACKED BY FLIES.

Aug. 23rd 1922.—Dull day with rain. We rocked at our moorings considerably last night owing to a heavy swell coming in from the Straits. In view of our important dinner party I decided to get some trout up the Porteau River. We shifted our anchorages down to the mouth of the river, and I took the dingy and rowed up stream. After a trying time negotiating rocks just below the surface of the water, I arrived at the stream proper, and tying up the dingy, proceeded on foot. Wading out to some rocks in the bed of the river I immediately got into some good sea trout, and had great sport. As soon as the rain stopped I was attacked by millions of sand flies, and I had left my fly "dope" on the Hawke. The flies on Labrador must be seen and felt to be appreciated. They came in clusters, biting hard; every time I put my hand to my neck, I drew it away covered with blood and the carcasses of dead flies. I returned to the boat happy with my catch but smarting acutely from the effects of the flies. Never again will I be caught out through leaving my "dope" behind.

VALE.

Aug. 27th 1922.—As the sea had dropped a bit we decided to try and reach Point Riche, but had to put in at New Port aux Choix, towards evening. However, we were able to round the point, and arrived safely at the old Whale Factory at Hawke Bay. A message from the Boes, he wants us to go to Botwood immediately. What a hectic existence we do lead, the Home is due in at six to-night, hastily dismantling the dark-room, we rushed to Port Saunders to find no news of the Home, and being Sunday the wires are closed. We stayed the night on board the Hawke, anchored off Port Saunders wharf, and the next morning we went ashore. Thanks to the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Garland, we were made comfortable at their home, and when the Post Office opened we learnt that the "Home" was delayed by fog. We spent the day writing letters and after an enjoyable evening of music we retired to our beds in comfort.

August 29th 1922.—Left Port Saunders in "Home" at 12.45 p.m., heavy sea and high wind. Was thoroughly wick and retired to my cabin to find Stinks reduced to a similar state. We stayed there until we reached Bay of Islands next day, then we crept on deck. After a welcome haircut, the last I had was in London, we left Curling at about 3.30 p.m. on the so called Express en route for Norris Arm.

Aug. 31st 1922.—Arrived safely Telegram to say that the Boes is on his way from Bonne Bay by air. Wonder what fate he has in store for us now?

St. Thomas's Curate.

REV. T. O. LIGHTBOURN, B.A.
According to a telegram received in town yesterday from the Rector, the Rev. E. C. Eap, B.A., the new Curate for St. Thomas's Parish will be the Rev. T. O. Lightbourn, Mr. Lightbourn, who is a Bachelor of Arts of Toronto University, served during the war as a Captain in the Royal Air Force, Mediterranean Squadron. He was ordained about two years ago and is at present Rector of Shanty Bay, a pleasant little summer resort about fifty miles north of Toronto. He comes to St. Thomas's very strongly recommended by Canon Cody and Principal McIntyre, who are all old and valued friends of Mr. Eap and with whom the Rector stayed while in Toronto. Mr. Lightbourn will not feel that he is quite a stranger to Newfoundland as he is a connection of the Whiteway and Outerbridge families in this city. He expects to take up his new duties early in November.

SOLDIERS' BONUS BILL APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.
The House of Representatives approved to-day the conference report on the Soldiers' Bonus Bill. The measure now goes to the Senate and with final action there will be sent to President Harding.

I have never seen a more wild or desolate spot. Arriving at Flower's Cove at lunch time, I got through to Hawke Bay, and found that the Boes had taken the Mayor and flown off to St. John's in the "inside." So we decided to make for home immediately. Towards evening the wind and sea got up, and when passing St. John's Island we were hit by a squall, which called for the skillful handling of our engineer, under whose guidance we made the harbour on the Island. Later when the squall subsided a bit we were able to slip up to old Port aux Choix, where we rested at anchor that night, and the whole of the next day and night, owing to heavy weather.

What Do You Think of a Fluid

That will draw roaches and ants out of every hole, crack, or crevice before killing them and not poison food?
That will kill bugs instantly and not leave an unpleasant odor?
That will knock flies off the wall and not harm paint or paper?
That will keep the bedroom, kitchen, or verandah clear of flies, mosquitoes, etc., for several hours after a few sprays?
That will take fleas off a dog and not harm the dog?
That will destroy chicken lice without any injury to your stock?
That applied in small quantities to the exposed parts of the body will insure you from Mosquito bites?
That as a general disinfectant is stronger than the ordinary carbolic solution.

THAT FLUID IS

SAN-O-SPRAY.

No insect can live where San-O-Spray is used. Yet San-O-Spray is non-poisonous to human beings and can be used with perfect safety in pantry, kitchen, dining room, and cellars, moreover San-O-Spray has an agreeable and delightful odor, removing all fetid or unpleasant odors. In addition San-O-Spray is a disinfectant and germicide. Keeps the home sanitary and free from infectious diseases.

"Why don't you give him

This was the appeal of the gentle old Hebrew philosopher when his children faced the gravest crisis of their young lives.

We must not

Maybe he has great troubles.

This was the broad charity he had in his heart when his foster son for whom he had sacrificed much, despised him.

When beings are human there is neither
