proval to the action. No Londoners attended the meeting in the Queen City. Without exception, however, they indorsed the movement for a thorough inquiry into the Home Bank's affairs, and thought it only right that a proportion of de-positors should organize to protect themselves. It is unnecessary, they observed, to appoint local representatives to the investigating board. The Toronto appointees could be counted on to act in the interests of all depositors throughout the province.
Staunch opposition to liquidation in Toronto is reflected here. A repetition of the Farmers' Bank flasco, which deprived depositors of their savings is feared if the Home Bank

HERO'S MESSAGE

What is supposed to be the first newspaper that ever came to London was discovered in the vacated prem-ises of Dickison & Nicholson Com-pany, Richmond street, by William Coles Jun. yesterday.

The newspaper is called the New Jersey Journal, and is among the first dozen ever printed in North America. From an historical viewpoint, it represents a valuable find, and the copy in Mr. Coles' possession is dated "February 16, 1779. Vol. I., Numb. 1."

the present day. It was a contempor-ary of the Canada Gazette, and quotes extracts from the latter paper in its news columns. "News" in those days was confined almost exclusively to letters sent in by soldiers, politicians, clergymen, and others, in touch with current events. The Journal was a three-column affair about sixteen inches deep.
