No grain or produce of any kind was fered on the local market this morning, the heavy snowfall over the week-end and continued blustery weather evidently discouraging any good intentions some may have had in coming to the city this morning.

The demand for hay is stronger today, the supplies brought to town last week being altogether too inadequate to fill the many orders of the buyers. The price is still quoted from $13 to $15, but a jump is expected unless the supply materially increases.

This stock has been regarded as seiling out of line through liquidation and neglect.

The company ended their year Dec. 31 last, and it is understood they enjoyed a good one, deriving considerable benefit from the recent merger. In 1922 the company earned $267,040, and were able to dispose of the entire season's pack. Should the preferential tariff, as proposed at the recent conference of the dominions, go through, Dominion Canners will find a much better market abroad for their goods, and this should tend to make the current year a much better one all around.

Under the terms of the merger, the company came into possession of approximately 30 additional plants without any outlay of cash. Payments were made by the issuing of shares in the new company, and to this end a new charter was taken out, giving the company a capital of $10,000,000.

No distribution of the securities has been made as yet, owing to the fact that an appraisal of a number of the plants had to be made, and General Manager Innes stated no shares would be handed out until all details had been completed.

It is now thought that everything is ready, and the Dominion Canners are completed.

It is now thought that everything is ready, and the Dominion Canners are about to apportion the securities among the owners of the various plants. Shareholders, according to reports on the street, will also benefit by the transfer of their shares to the new company. One of the reports has it that three of the new shares is to be distributed for every two of the old.

The volume of trading has not been large, but what has been lacking in that respect has been made up for in the sharper price changes, which may, in a measure, be attributed to narrowness of the floating supply. a measure, he attributed to narrowness of the floating supply.

It is believed the company has been earning at the rate of about 15 per cent lately. The street feels, in view of past performances, that 1924 may prove an interesting year for the shareholders, and that if the dividend is not further increased that some further special consideration will be given them. As the company has no funded debt or preferred stock, all the profits are directly applicable to the common stock, which makes the position doubly attractive.

VICTORIES CLIMBING. VICTORIES CLIMBING.

It is interesting to note the way that Victory bonds and government refunding loans have been creeping upward over the past three or four weeks.

BOND OFFERINGS.

January lists being sent out by the bond houses indicate that the bond market is about as bare of bonds as it has been for many a long day. Last June or July there was a noticeable shortage of securities apparent in the rrinted offerings that went out to clients, but it wasn't a patch on them now.

A large bond house explained to us this week that this is one of the main reasons why they are looking forward to higher prices in securities. There is no big new issues in sight at the present time, except the $3,700,000 5 per cent bonds being put out by the city of Montreal. It is stated that the province of Alberta issue will likely be marketed in the States.
