New Brunswick Lady Is Enthusiastic

For Dodd's Kidney Pills Have Made Her Well.

Her Kidney Troubles Soon Disappeared After Taking Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Portage River, N. B., May 14. — (Special).—I am glad to furnish this testimonial for the benefit of those suffering as I was. Your Dodd's Kidney Pills have completely relieved me in a few months' treatment of a painful backache, which was very severe at times, and which had bothered me for a period of seven or eight months.

This statement is made by Mrs. G. Marzall, who lives in this place. Dodd's Kidney Pills strengthen the kidneys, and put them in shape to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. They have relieved thousands of female sufferers all over Canada.

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from drugists everywhere, or The Dodd's Medicine Company, Limited, Toronto.—Adv.

At the Movies Last Night

"Mighty Lak' a Rose."

The bill now playing at Allen's for the first half of the week is one of the best photo-vaudeville combinations offered in London this season. The feature photo, "Mighty Lak' a Rose," is an East Side New York play, which has an alley of the New York underworld as its principal setting. The plot is made possible by the death of an elderly storekeeper, who was killed in a motor accident, who on his way to meet his beautiful blind niece at the railway station. Just as the uncle expires, a doubtful character, who was standing in the crowd that gathered as a result of the accident, heard the uncle mention that he was on his way to meet Rose at the station. The play develops and finds the thug and the blind girl both at the station, the girl with an identification note pinned on her suit, and the thug hard pressed for an exit from the station, which has been surrounded by the police. Swapping a few articles of clothing from a man who is asleep in a remote corner, the thug plays the part of the blind girl's uncle, and using her as a decoy, they leave the station unmolested. The crooks of the house hold of crooks follows as a matter of course and as a result of the girl's innocence and her wonderful violin playing. After the principals in the play are following the "straight and narrow," they learn that the girl's sight can be restored, and the procuring of the necessary funds on which notice brings about a temporary relapse and the pulling off of a last burglary, in which the youngest of the friends and the girl's sweetheart is captured and sent to Sing-Sing. The play proceeds to a happy ending in which everyone is supremely happy, but it is necessary to use the play to appreciate the wonderful acting. The picture, although relieved by many humorous tid-bits, is principally of the heart-throb type, and those who enjoy a love story splendidly enacted, this photo will come as a real treat.

The vaudeville is a unique turn in the form of a juvenile review by the Hollywood Kiddies, light from the Californian hot-bed of moviedom. They are wonderfully clever youngsters, and in watching their stunts one is likely to forget that they are still kiddies, so clever is their acting.

"The Greatest Menace."
"The Greatest Menace," being shown this week at the Grand, entitled an expose of the methods of the dope fiend, of the pedlars of drugs, and of the helplessness of the addicts, has the merit of being exceedingly well acted by a cast that has been very carefully chosen. The picture is shown under the auspices of the "Committee of Sixteen" of Montreal, and the introductory notes states that it is offered to Canadians as a warning of the dangers of drug use, and that the use of drugs has already obtained in this country and of the terrible and far-reaching effects that always follow their use.

The picture is intensely interesting, and the mirror that it holds up to the drug vice is clear if not comprehensive. The audience is allowed to see one or two "cokeys," the methods of those who peddle the "snow," and in a restricted measure the results that trail the addict. The love element, however, has been introduced, perhaps as a palliative and a sort of apology for premonition on the screen, and this interpolation, however sentimental and thrilling, detracts from the force and directness of the picture as an expose.

There is no suggestion as to any means of saving our boys and girls from this admitted danger, no clear tale of the origin of the drug habit, and no advice from the "Committee of Sixteen" on suitable ways of preventing the sale and the use of the drugs. Nevertheless, it is a picture worth seeing, if only that it may discover to the people of this country their enemy, the drug habit, an enemy more deadly than most of the widely-discussed shadows hovering on the horizon of our nationhood, and more insidious than the yellow peril or most of the hundred and one things we are told to avoid and prepare to withstand.

Harold Lloyd appears in the same bill in a real Lloyd comedy, "Off the Trolley." Bebe Daniels, his old partner on the screen, and that other old favorite, Snub Pollard, had parts in this, a laughter-giving picture that won immediate favor with the audience last night. Paul Porcino in "Speed the Swede" supplies ten minutes of wholesome fun, and the Pathe film, some of it in color photography, of the Basque villages in the Pyrenees is a quiet, dainty offering that comes as a relief from the more spectacular and exciting pictures of the rest of the program.

"Crinoline and Romance."
There's the spice of attraction in both pictures and vaudeville at Allen's. The beginning of the week "Crinoline and Romance" is a bit of adroit comedy, starring Viola Dana, and with John Bowers and Allen Forrest as well. The crinolines are the feature, and the romance is a bit of story-book life, nicely entertaining when enacted in the pretty atmosphere of Southern "hood."

The vaudeville commences with "good" and goes on to "best." All the sure-fire hits are decked out in the garb and comedy of the vaudeville, and the picture is liberally amused tumbling, dancing, juggling and the rest.

Viola Dana, even better than usual and as a combination of comedy and romance with a bit of philosophy not too forcibly inserted, the feature picture ought to please you.

"The Buster."
The week's offering at the Patricia is well up to the usual standard of this house. Dustin Farnum in "The Buster," a real western picture with lots of pep and hustle, proves that the gift for movie acting belongs to both the Farnum brothers and that Dustin as well as Bill has the power of carrying a tale along on the screen as much by the strength of his personality as by the force and adroitness of the story.

In this typical picture of the cow country Dustin Farnum in the role of Mr. Corvill, the foreman of a ranch situated with the best of his boss's daughter during a campaign trip in the hills, gives us an idea of some of the ways in which a woman may be introduced to the hardships of outdoor life, to the vicissitudes of the rancher's daily round and the lordly and benignant rule of mere man. In the course of this instruction he himself falls beneath the onslaught of the fair lady's eyes and after every trial and feat of heroism that any movie lover can be expected to endure, the tale ends in the triumph of love and the happiness of the lovers.

It's an interesting picture, it has action, a fair share of plot and plenty of pretty scenes of the open country, and as such should meet with the approval of the Patricia patrons.

place in the bill and the vaudeville turn is well above the average. There are two men in this little skit who with some story and dance add an effective and pleasing change from the steady run of black and white on the screen. Reginald Denny in "Round Fore" of the Leather Pusher series completes a well-balanced bill.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN"
PLAYING AT MAJESTIC

Gladke-Palmer Players Present Favorite Melodrama of Slavery Days.

In this age of theatrical fantasies, melodramas come and go; one week they are the talk of the country and the next forgotten; but there is one spectacle that has been staged hundreds of times and yet its popularity never seems to be on the wane. It is "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

In the past London has viewed elaborate versions of this theme that sprang from the slave tyranny in the southern states more than 100 years ago. The Gladke Players, in conjunction with the Palmer Road Show, presented the play at the Majestic last night, and although the scenery and costumes were not as extravagant as some that have been witnessed in the city before, the characterization of the spectacle was exceedingly fine.

The tense moments and the climaxes for which "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is noted, were realistically staged and the audience that just about filled the theatre appeared to be satisfied when the final curtain rang down.

The cast included Patrick Wark as "Simon Legree," Vera Second as "Ophelia," Florence Curwood as "Eva," Fanny Kane as "Eliza," Frances Lindley as "Topsy," Pat Saunders as "George Harris," Herbert O'Connor as the auctioneer, William Reap as "Marks, the lawyer," and James E. Kane as "Phineas."

30,000 ISLANDS, GEORGIAN

A favorite summer playground for residents of Eastern Canada is the Georgian Bay. On the east side of the bay is an archipelago of numerous islands, great and small. Although the district is known as the 30,000 Islands of the Georgian Bay, 48,000 islands have already been marked on the government chart, and this does not include all. Throughout the summer fresh, cool breezes blow from the Great Lakes.

"All the ills that flesh is heir to" seem to vanish in this healthful region. The Canadian National Railways have issued an interesting publication dealing with this territory, and which includes a list of hotels and other points of interest. ODDFELLOWS HONOR

MRS. CL. T. CAMPBELL

Present Handsome Portrait of Late Past Grand Sir.

The high regard in which the late Dr. Cl. T. Campbell was held by the Oddfellows of London was beautifully expressed last night, when a life-size portrait of Dr. Campbell, handsomely finished in oil on canvas, was presented to Mrs. Campbell in the drawing-room of her home. The presentation was made by Arthur Borland, past district deputy, and H. A. Clements, district deputy, on behalf of the Oddfellows of the city. The late Dr. Campbell was Past Grand Sir of the Sovereign Lodge of the Oddfellows of the World, and very prominent. Dr. C. E. Jarvis, a life-long friend of the doctor, spoke of the fine character and true friendship that manifested itself in the life of Dr. Campbell.

Mrs. Campbell spoke touchingly of the high honor paid her and her appreciation of the everlasting good-will that the lodges of the city hold for her late husband.

Everyone in the lodge contributed toward the gift.

HER HEART SKIPPED EVERY THIRD BEAT

Mrs. James Burleigh, 248 King St. E., Chatham, Ont., writes: "I think it my duty to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me.

I suffered for years with palpitation of the heart, my nerves were very bad, and I could not be left alone at any time. I doctored for over a year, and the doctor said my heart was very bad as it skipped every third beat.

I gave up, just at this time, and then my mother advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, saying my eldest brother had been relieved by using them. I had been very bad with my heart and nerves. I got a box and started to take them, and when I had used it I felt a lot better; could sleep a little and felt stronger. I continued taking them for about three months, and felt better than I had for years.

When I think of the misery and suffering I went through before I started Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I feel like letting everyone know what they did for me.

HAD TO FIGHT TO GET HIS BREATH
Reed Declares Gases Were Bad He Nearly Choked At Times.

"The best I can say is not half enough for Tanlac," states Frederick Reed, 286 Roxborough avenue, Hamilton, Ont., well-known business man.

"Last winter gripe and tonics confined me to my home for weeks and left me so thin and frail I looked like I could never get up to my business again. I would chug up with gas, until I had to fight my way out, and was so nauseated I could scarcely retain a thing. Pains in my stomach and sides would double me up. I could scarcely sleep a wink, and my head would throb. I couldn't even arrange my tie."

"However, the Tanlac treatment suited my case so well it ended my troubles, increased my weight, and I ever did. I feel right all the time now, and haven't missed a day from my business since I finished the treatment. Tanlac has no equal. Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 5,000,000 bottles sold.—Adv.
