MARKETS AND CROPS IN ENGLAND.

(From the Mark Lane Express of July 9th.)

"To be able to report a brilliant week after such protracted wet and cold weather, is really a relief and a subject for gratitude. Haymaking has gone on extensively, a portion is already assured, and some carried with a better result than at one time was expected; the raised temperature previously to the dryness having much improved the crop, which may now turn out an average. But those few, who in despondency commenced cutting in the wet, have been obliged to force off their new gatherings at damaging With respect to corn and roots, there has not been so decided an improvement, the soil, especially heavy lands in low places, being apparently water-logged, though bound on the sur-Potatoes have no strength; neither wur-Wheat very slowly advances on the best soils, and looks hopeless on the worst, as is the case with Barley; and there is no time now for a tillering or increase. But this makes it the more important that the fine weather should last till harvest is over, as an abundant yield under the most favourable circumstances is impossible. Yet the markets have shown the usual sensitiveness under a clear sky, and have universally given way fully 1s. per quarter. The rates at present are beyond speculative demand, and the quantity with better though not heavy foreign supplies being beyond millers' present wants, whose policy at such periods is always reserved. Foreign markets, too, have rather fallen back, upon the dull advices hence, excepting Odessa, which had been sent up by English orders; and perhaps there is no country but France that will be less than an average. There the rates have given way 1s. 6d. to 2s. per qr.; but the general lateness certainly places the universal yield in greater jeopardy. As respects
