'Have you any alarm clocks?' inquired the customer of a jeweler recently. 'Yes ma'am' said the man behind the counter. 'About what price do you wish to pay for one?' 'The price is no object if I can get the kind I am after. What I want is one that will rouse the girl without waking the whole family.' 'I don't know of any such alarm clock as that ma'am,' said the man. 'We keep just the ordinary kind—the kind that will wake the whole family without disturbing the girl.'

An Oxford dean had a tortoise who was a great favourite with the students. He was a privileged pet, and allowed to wander about the quadrangle at will. A party of undergraduates one afternoon were trying to feed him while the dean looked on from his study window, unseen, behind a thick elm. After watching their fruitless efforts for a considerable time, the dean could repress himself no longer. He threw up the window, and shouted to them, 'Try the other end!', which they did, and this time with complete success.
