MEDICAL NEEDS.

Inoculation is the thing!

The scientists of every land
Are laboring with guinea pigs
A happy and devoted band.
Phylacogens are their delight,
This is a prophylactic era,
And many of the ills of life
Are fought with variegated sera.

And while rheumatics may be cured
By needle punches in the arm,
And gout no longer threatens us,
And shingles cause us no alarm,
The doctors have a deal to do
Before disease is all destroyed
And we can sit, a healthy lot,
In bliss complete and unalloyed.

No serum yet has been devised
To keep a man from writing verse
With crippled feet (like David's friend),
Though the disease is growing worse.
And if we could inoculate
For Stingy Fever it were well,
For how the world has ailed with this
No Paragraphic Pen can tell.

Oh, for a prophylactic aid,
A serum of especial sort,
To cure the men who think the world
Was made for Fashion and for Sport.
Another stern and fierce disease
Lurks often in the City air.
No remedy is found to ease
The ill of Wanting to be Mayor.
