

Scientific and Useful.

ACOUSTICS IN PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

A. W. C., in the Scientific American, states the inability to hear distinctly in our public buildings is due to the architects, and that those gentlemen should remember that an ounce of prevention is worth more than a ton of cure.

A PASTE THAT WILL KEEP.

The great difficulty with paste is that it soon and moulds so quickly that it does not pay to mix a large quantity, but the Journal of Applied Chemistry gives a recipe for making a perpetual paste, thus: Dissolve a tea-spoonful of alum in a quart of water.

SOFT SOAP AND VINEGAR FOR THE HANDS.

A correspondent of the Scientific American says: "Our men in the shop use soft soap to remove the grease and dirt from their hands when they quit work. This, they find, causes cracks to come; but if they dip them in vinegar just after washing with soft soap, their hands will remain soft and smooth, and heal up."

THE LANGUAGE OF ANIMALS.

Certainly all animals have a mode of expressing feelings to others of the same species. Wolves arrange attacks, hunting together in packs. They are all animated by the same thought, and therefore travel with energy for hours to accomplish a design of which each member of the enterprise has a rational understanding.

METALLIC PENS.

Iron and gold have almost entirely displaced the "gray-goose quill" as an instrument for writing. In Birmingham the number of steel pens made weekly is about 90,000 gross, or 14,120,000 separate pens.
