

oom visions of Federal bankruptcy, and prolonged and aggravated internecine feuds. I see the shackles of the slave rivetted more firmly than ever, or else the whole institution of slavery swept away in a whirlwind of carnage and arson, lust and outrage, famine and desolation, the worst passions of an unchained democracy let loose to work out its dream of universal insult and promiscuous conquest, or else a military despotism placing its iron yoke upon an enslaved people, and hounding them on to outrage and aggression against the world.

THE END.
