position, while on the left the 29th Vision succeeded, just before sunset, in driving the enemy back nearly into the village of Kithila.

"May 8 the attack was again resumed, and an advance in the face of a very heavy fire was begun. French troops attacked the Turkish trenches except on the extreme left, advanced steadily. During the night the Turks attempted a counter-attack, but this was everywhere repulsed with heavy losses.

"During the fighting of these three days the Australian corps at Sari Bahr, in spite of having sent reinforcements to support the main attack, succeeded in holding their own and resisted all attacks. The fighting on these three days was severe. Happily a large proportion of the British casualties represented only slight wounds. It had been clearly demonstrated that the Turkish defences were strongly constructed, and that their capture must be achieved by the slow and methodical methods of trench warfare.

French Show Fine Courage
"The French forces through these operations fought with magnificent courage and dash; also they suffered heavy losses.

"During May 9 ground was gained everywhere and consolidated. At 10.45 p.m. an attack was brilliantly carried out by the 15th and 16th Battalions of the Fourth Australian Infantry Brigade. These detachments attacked and carried with the bayonet three lines of Turkish trenches at Sari Bahr and established themselves therein.

A heavy Turkish counter-attack was launched at dawn of May 10 and forced the Australians back to their original trenches, but the guns of the corps were in readiness and they opened fire on the enemy at close range. The execution was terrible, and the bodies of Turks lay so thick upon the ground as to form an obstacle.

Ghurkas' Dashing Exploit.
"During May 10, 11 and 12 further reinforcements for the French, British and Australian troops arrived.
On the night of May 12 troops of the 20th Division under Major-General Hunter Weston undertook an attack against the enemy's extreme right, under cover of a demonstration by artillery and infantry. A double company of Gurkhas crept along under precipitous ascents and occupied a cleft in front of the allied line where they dug themselves in during the night.

"On May 13 and 14 the left of the allied line was again further advanced, and the position of the Indian Brigade made secure.
"On May 17 the 29th division worked further forward and established themselves in trenches 200 yards in advance. The allied artillery was re-handed. Aided by aeroplane observation, it destroyed by direct hits a Turkish howitzer exploded a wagonload of heavy gun ammunition, as well as demolishing some new Turkish entrenchments.

Death of Gen. Bridges
"On this day Gen Bridges, commanding the Australian division, was mortally wounded during an attack on the Australian position. His subsequent death caused an irreparable loss to his command.
"A further advance was made on the night of May 18 by the French troops, supported by the royal naval division.
"During the night of May 19 a continuous fire was maintained against the Australian and New Zealand corps, but no attack was delivered."

SOCIETY

Conducted by Mrs. Edmund Phillips.

A few of the noticeable gowns at the races yesterday were: A black Sicilian tailor-made with a tall coat, a gray silk stole and a small black hat with Beigian blue velvet and small bunches of yellow flowers; one very pretty girl wore a black and white silk with vandykes of black at the hem, a little black satin coat, a white fox skin, and a wide-brimmed pink hat; a smart dark blue costume was striped horizontally with black velvet, a seal-skin scarf and a black hat; a white tailor-made was worn with a white and black hat with red satin flowers and the wearer carried a green parasol; a coat and skirt of rose velvet looked pretty with a white straw hat trimmed with a large black bow; a very attractive and beautifully-made coat and skirt was of a fine check in pale blues and greys, the black hat worn with it being from a well-known and very smart place in the millinery street, very plain, only straw and a bow of ribbon, but having the requisite air; a gown of violet chiffon over satin; the same shade was worn with a pink satin hat wreathed with small flowers; a visitor from Winnipeg wore a very handsome dark velvet with wide girde of satin, finished at the back with tassels, pale tan stockings and shoes and a brown straw torpede with two gold-colored quills; another pretty little visitor from the western city wore a pretty gown with a very jaunty small hat trimmed with a small fortune in white osprey and set at a coquettish angle.

The Blue Cross Society will hold a flag day in town today.

Mrs. Dickson and Miss Macdonald have issued invitations to an entertainment at 3 o'clock this afternoon in aid of the Red Cross Fund. The program will be given by the dancing and physical culture clubs, the house, and the school science class will hold a sale of confections and afternoon tea.

Mrs. Burritt gave a very charming luncheon yesterday at her flat in Wesley street, and a large number of guests to the races. The winner of the King's Plate was the central ornament of the day, and the donor of so many each received a favor in the form of a small model of the horse.

Mrs. and Miss Jukes have left town and gone to Detroit, where they will live for the future.

Mrs. Lussan Beaudryne is spending a few days in town from Montreal, and is staying with Mrs. J. B. MacLean.

The Toronto Conservatory of Music has issued invitations to a demonstration of national, folk and classical dancing by pupils of Miss Amy Sternberg, in the new recital hall, University avenue, this evening at
