

$14,000 if purchased at once, buy three brick houses... H. H. WILLIAMS, 10 VICTORIA ST.

July 22

TWENTY-FIFTH YEAR

TWELVE PAGES

SATURDAY MORNING

JULY 23 1904

TWELVE PAGES

ONE CENT

PATENTS Obtained in all countries... FREE!

THE TORONTO STAR

IT WILL COST 8 MILLIONS TORONTO-SUBURBAN BRANCH

BEFORE END OF JULY 2500 MEN WILL BE AT WORK ON PART OF THE LINE.

RAILWAYS CONTROL BURNED DISTRICT OWNERSHIP TO RES IN GRAND TRUNK

RAILWAY COMMISSION WILL ISSUE ORDERS FOR EXPROPRIATION REGARDLESS OF CITY'S WISH

NO SPECIFIED UNDERTAKINGS MADE

OTTAWA, July 22.—(Special)—The Grand Trunk Railway, subject to arrangements which the company will be required to make with the C.P.R. and the Canadian Northern as to a Union Station and terminal facilities.

This solution of the applications of rival railway companies for power to expropriate the burnt district was reached at a meeting of the railway commission held today. It was facilitated by the withdrawal of the application of the Canadian Northern at a moment when the union seemed hopelessly complicated. The result is that the G.T.R. is satisfied, the C.P.R. is satisfied, the Canadian Northern is satisfied and the City of Toronto will have to be satisfied.

The city, while well represented, played the part of an innocent onlooker before the commission. The railways had made up their minds to have the land and the commission was fully determined to give it to them. While any solution of the difficulty removing the uncertainty that for over two months has been hanging over the fire-ruined district would be a relief, the city is to be regretted that the railways were required to give more specific undertakings in advance of Mr. Blair's assurance that an order of expropriation would be granted forthwith.

Not Content with City. The commission would not even promise that the city should be given the right to make certain important negotiations before the final order is issued. There are several points at which the city might require protection. These include the closing of Bay and Lorne streets, and substantial facilities for gaining access to the waterfront, annual rental, assessments of the station and some minor questions. The city has already had been proceeding through the city and the railways. When the order of the expropriation is issued, the city will probably find there are more stubborn negotiations than there were before the right of expropriation was conceded.

It was noticeable also that the railways shifted their ground on the question of the urgency of a new union station. F. H. McGilligan of the Grand Trunk, who was the chief spokesman, did not lead the commission to believe that there would be any rush in building a new station, nor was he required to give any specific assurances as to what the expropriated lands would be used for. The commission will, of course, insert conditions in the expropriation order, but the city aldermen would have less cause for apprehension if these important questions were settled before the order is issued.

Chairman Blair unsuccessfully attempted to fasten on the city the blame for the breaking of the negotiations with the railways. "You were very much to be blamed," he said, "for not promptly turning out to assist in the filing of plans by the Canadian Northern."

Money Package Arrived Safe. The registered package containing $2000 was forwarded by a local bank to the Lumberman's Bank at International Falls and was reported to have arrived safely at its destination. The reported disappearance was caused by a change in the route of the mail, but the postal authorities are now forwarding the package through the usual route. The postal authorities are now forwarding the package through the usual route. The postal authorities are now forwarding the package through the usual route.

Comparatively Cool. Meteorological Office, Toronto, July 22.—(5 p.m.)—A few scattered showers or underclouds are reported in the lower region. Elsewhere in Canada the weather has been everywhere fine. Excessive heat is reported from the Northwest Territories with a maximum of 102 degrees in the Yukon. Minimum and maximum temperatures: Victoria, 88-92; Kamloops, 70-88; Calgary, 66-84; Edmonton, 52-64; Gravelly, 84; Winnipeg, 44-72; Port Arthur, 52-88; Toronto, 58-74; Montreal, 52-80; Quebec, 48-74; Halifax, 51-80.

Lower Lakes, Georgian Bay, Ottawa Valley and Upper St. Lawrence.—Moderate to fresh northerly to northerly winds; a few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Lower St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Upper St. Lawrence and Gulf.—A few scattered showers or underclouds, but for the most part fair and continued comparatively cool.

Maritime.—Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday. Light to moderate winds; fair and warm; a few scattered showers or underclouds, more especially in Sunday.

Little Follows Drive Enemy From a Strongly Fortified Position on the Chi River.

CLOSING IN ON LIAOYANG.

Tokyo, July 22.—General Kuroki, after a severe fight, occupied Liaoyang on July 19. The place had been fortified by the Russians. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

General Kuroki began his advance early on the morning of the 18th. He covered and followed the enemy along the Chi River. The Russians seemed suddenly two battalions, with eight guns, turned and attacked the Japanese advance guard vigorously. At this point the Japanese suffered before the relief came, ONE COMPANY LOSING ALL ITS OFFICERS. At a late hour in the afternoon the Russians' position was developed. They occupied an eminence on the bank of the Chi. This river guarded their left flank and high precipices protected the Russians on the right. The approach to this position was through a narrow defile. The fighting continued until dark, when the Japanese forces broke through the Russian lines. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

Renewed at Midnight. The Japanese renewed the attack at midnight, posting their artillery in the valley below and on the high ground to the south of the Russian position. The main Japanese body was assigned to attack the Russian centre, a small detachment to the left, another to the right and another to watch the enemy's left flank. After these positions had been taken, the fighting ceased for a time, but it was resumed at dawn. The Japanese made two counter attacks, but were repulsed in each case.

CREMATING BODIES.

General Kuroki's Headquarters in the Field, July 20, via Fusan, Korea. July 22.—The Japanese attack on the Russians at Kiaoting yesterday resulted in another Russian disaster. Kiaoting is twenty-five miles from these headquarters. Few details of the engagement have been received, but they indicate that the fighting was fierce. The Russians had more than one division engaged and the artillery was used freely. The Russians lost 1000, the Japanese 424. The Russians are fortifying new positions before Mollen Pass. There were more men killed in the fighting of Sunday, July 17, than can be buried and the Japanese are now engaged in cremating the bodies.

MALACCA INCIDENT ENDED.

No Similar Incident Will Happen, as British Cruisers Have Received Orders.

London, July 22.—The morning papers generally express satisfaction that the Malacca incident has been settled in accordance with the demands of Great Britain, but there is an inclination to await the settlement of the broader question of the passage through the Dardanelles of the volunteer fleet, before believing that all danger has been averted. This feeling is heightened by Premier Balfour's announcement of the adjournment of the house of commons that he still had no official word to communicate either in connection with the Malacca incident or with volunteer fleet steamers in general.

Explains Allay. Some papers are even inclined to doubt the authenticity of the news that the Malacca incident has been settled. The Daily Telegraph semi-officially explains the apparent contradiction existing between Mr. Balfour's statements and the telegrams from St. Petersburg.

Two dispatches left the foreign office, July 21, says the Daily Telegraph. "One has elicited a favorable reply, but the other has not yet been answered. The promise that 'no similar incident shall occur again' is very vague and elastic. It may mean that no British vessel shall in the future be seized, the papers of which are regular and the cargo carried by which belongs to his British majesty's government. That is not much of a concession, seeing that our fleet has instructions to prevent another such outrage."

Not Yet Agreed. The paper fears that the Russian government has not yet agreed to alter the volunteer fleet steamers to cruisers after the passage of the Dardanelles, and says: "We welcome the action regarding the Malacca as proof that the Russian government has no idea of gratuitously picking a quarrel with us. This is good so far as it goes."

The Daily News says it believes that the government is resolved that no more Russian ships will be allowed to pass through the Dardanelles, but that the settlement of the main features of the dispute is not yet reached.

It urgently points out to the government that popular opinion in Great Britain is not in favor of a warship, and adds an interesting detail to the heat of the controversy of the last few days by positively stating that if the Malacca had approached the Dardanelles "she would have been sunk" and that if she had not been sunk she would have been fired upon.

The Daily News says it believes that the government is resolved that no more Russian ships will be allowed to pass through the Dardanelles, but that the settlement of the main features of the dispute is not yet reached.

It urgently points out to the government that popular opinion in Great Britain is not in favor of a warship, and adds an interesting detail to the heat of the controversy of the last few days by positively stating that if the Malacca had approached the Dardanelles "she would have been sunk" and that if she had not been sunk she would have been fired upon.

The Daily News says it believes that the government is resolved that no more Russian ships will be allowed to pass through the Dardanelles, but that the settlement of the main features of the dispute is not yet reached.

It urgently points out to the government that popular opinion in Great Britain is not in favor of a warship, and adds an interesting detail to the heat of the controversy of the last few days by positively stating that if the Malacca had approached the Dardanelles "she would have been sunk" and that if she had not been sunk she would have been fired upon.

The Daily News says it believes that the government is resolved that no more Russian ships will be allowed to pass through the Dardanelles, but that the settlement of the main features of the dispute is not yet reached.

It urgently points out to the government that popular opinion in Great Britain is not in favor of a warship, and adds an interesting detail to the heat of the controversy of the last few days by positively stating that if the Malacca had approached the Dardanelles "she would have been sunk" and that if she had not been sunk she would have been fired upon.

The Daily News says it believes that the government is resolved that no more Russian ships