Market Contends Against Adverse Influences Mainly by a Decline in World Office. Saturday Evening, Feb. 6. Toronto mining markets last week were for the most part rather disappointing, not that stocks really showed serious signs of weakness, but the market generally seemed in the state of some uncertainty, causing speculators to either take their profits or to use the opportunity to make a bear raid on the market However, brokers report that there are a number of supporting orders in their hands at lower prices, and per-haps a healthy reaction will do much to clear the market of a weak specula-tive following, in this way helping to do away with the doubtful feeling that has been prevalent.

Prices on the whole have not gone back to any extent; in fact the case of Crown Reserve, Nipissing and a few others a small advance has been

Perhaps the most discussed stock during the past week has been Silver Queen. Rumors have been in the air that this company would pass the dividend, but no confirmation has been forthcoming from the proper quarter. This report was helped by the fact that the company had not shipped any ore for some time.

Another cause for the general distrust of the market may have been that some heavy dealers in futures had been unable to finance their contracts, but it is said that this adverse factor has been flowing into the offices of F. has now been largely eliminated and the market situation has been cleared
