NAMES OF MEN OF 115TH WHO HAVE BEEN SENT OVER TO FRANCE

Scene as Some of Col. Wedderburn's Soldiers Leave England for the Front

DEMONSTRATION FOR LEADER

Some Have Gone to Re-enforce the 24th Battalion and Others to Fill Gaps in Ranks of Gallant 20th

From a St. John office comes to a friend here an account of the departure of 176 fine lads of the 115th to France as a draft. They were mostly all St. John men, members of A Company, with a few from B and C. It is regarded as the break-up of the battalion. The officer writes: "Keep the home fires burning—so softly and sweetly the band played as the men started out upon their way to the station. 'Though your hearts are yearning'—the men took up the refrain, and though there was a catch in many a voice, a throbbing in many a manly throat, the singing soon became general all along the line, and briskly they marched down the road from camp to Liphook, where they would soon entrain on their journey to the front. They have gone to fill the gaps in the 24th Battalion, and in New Brunswick's pride, the 20th. For nearly a week the lads had been getting ready for the final leaving. Inspections of various kinds, renewal of kit, completion of odds and ends, had been in progress, until now, October 5, all was in readiness, and the order 'Quick March!' having been given, the company moved off.

Light-hearted, happy and proud of being selected, the men marched down the road in perfect step, with heads erect, and arms swinging in the rhythm that comes only after months of training. Many a cheery greeting was shouted at them from the roadways by the hundreds who gathered to give them a parting shout, while on a bank nearly opposite where they had been quartered for the last six weeks, stood the most popular of commanding officers, Lieut. Col. Wedderburn, to whom the compliment 'Byes Right' was paid.

But that was not enough for the men who were now passing out of his command, men who loved and respected him—waving their caps at arm's length they cheered and cheered him as they passed, to show their admiration, their sympathy with him in the loss of those who had served him well, and their regret that they would not be longer under his command. 'I'd like to talk to you, boys,' the colonel had said on parade that morning, 'but I can't—all I can say is good-bye.' And he then went through the lines, shaking hands with every man and wishing him good luck.

The band, led by Sgt. Perkins, struck up 'The Long Long Trail' and the voices of the men rang out in chorus, following with that most popular of marching songs, 'Pack all your troubles in your old kit bag.' The band played several pieces at the station, and the lads had been seated in the little compartments of an English train, their comrades who had come to see them off, their former officers, and the villagers who had gathered waved a last good-bye, and with the band playing 'God Save the King,' the train pulled out upon its way to Southampton.

The majority of the men who were included in the draft are from St. John. The others are very likely quite well known to many there, having wintered in the city last year, and the complete list is as follows:
