Exclusively to Measure

In the words of the Philosopher, Jean Jaures, "to accomplish large things, you must live largely." Must surround yourself with an atmosphere of comfort—sometimes of luxury; must bless yourself with clothes as good as are made. Such a sense of comfort is inseparable from the wearing of a suit of clothes made by the English & Scotch Woollen Co. We have gathered hundreds of the most attractive patterns our trained eyes could select, and they are, for you, an unrestricted choice.

A SUBMARINE'S GALLANT DEEDS

Through Sea of Marmora To Constantinople

SANK THREE TURKISH CRAFT

British Battleship Majestic Torpedoed—Canadian Steamer in England Blown up—Jackson Succeeds Fisher

London, May 27.—The British battleship "Majestic" was sunk by an enemy submarine today in the Dardanelles. Nearly all the officers and crew were saved. She was of 18,000 tons, 10,000 horse power capacity and was built in 1885.

The British submarine E-11 yesterday sank a Turkish transport and two supply ships laden with munitions of war in the Sea of Marmora. She entered Constantinople and discharged a torpedo at a transport lying beside the arsenal. It is said that 400 of the crew of the British battleship "Triumph" were saved after she sank in the Dardanelles this week.

The captain of the American steamer "Neyrascan," on arrival in London yesterday, said that he was positive it was a German submarine which sank his boat. Still on the offensive the Italians have crossed the river Isarno, and their advance detachments are now within thirty miles of Trieste.

London, May 27, 10.35 p. m.—All the crew of 250 men of the British steamer "Princess Irene," except one man, and in addition seventy-eight dockers who were at work on board the steamer, lost their lives today when the vessel was blown up by an explosion on board in Sheerness harbor. The steamer was in the government service. Sheeress is a naval arsenal of Great Britain on the Thames.

The statement of the admiralty says: "The Princess Irene was accidentally blown up in Sheerness harbor this morning. So far as can be found out, only one survivor was picked up. Three men belonging to the ship were not on board at the time of the disaster."

"Several men belonging to the vessels lying close to the Princess Irene were wounded by falling splinters."

The Princess Irene was laid down for the C. P. R. service on the Pacific but was taken over by the admiralty at the beginning of the war.

The Princess Irene had been engaged in mine laying operations. The terrific explosion, which shook the whole town of Sheerness, was heard coming from the ship, followed by a high burst of flames and a column of dense smoke.

The Daily Mail says that in addition to the seventy-eight shipwrecked there also were on board 100 workmen from Chatham, as well as 240 members of the crew, which would give a total of 418 persons on the steamer.

London, May 27, 11.57 p. m.—Admiral Sir Henry Blandford Jackson has been appointed first sea lord of the Admiralty, to take the place of Admiral Lord Fisher, who retired recently owing, it is said, to differences with Winston Spencer Churchill, then first lord of the Admiralty. Admiral Sir Arthur Knyvet Wilson will remain with the Board of Admiralty in an advisory capacity.

HISTORIC BARK SOLD.

Queen Victoria Pressed Button at Launching of the Foong Suey.

The bark Foong Suey, which for twenty-five years traded to China, Japan and the Hawaiian Islands, has been sold by the Texas Oil Company to be converted into a coal barge. The Foong Suey was launched on the Clyde in 1888 and was named for a Chinese merchant in Honolulu. She was formerly owned by Charles Brewer & Co., of Boston. A brass plate in the vessel's cabin testified to the fact that Queen Victoria pressed the button which sent the Foong Suey down the launching ways.
