32.64 Miles per Gallon

Ocean-to-Ocean Transportation for $50

What This Economy Record Means To Canada

3442 Miles—25 Drivers

CANADIANS—The remarkable record for economy made by an Overland stock car in the United States means just as much to you as though it had happened in Canada.

In these days of increasing talk about the scarcity and cost of gasoline, this transcontinental drive—3442 miles from New York to San Francisco at a total cost of just $39 for transportation, or $50 for the same trip in Canada, cannot fail to have a pocket-deep interest for every man and woman who drives a motor car.

Day and night the car sped on its way over sand and through mud, over stony mountain passes and blistering deserts; passed from hand to hand of 25 different drivers who had never seen the car before.

The only stops it made were to exchange drivers and take on gasoline, which was purchased as roadside filling stations.

—And at the finish, after sweeping across the continent, the car scarcely showed any signs of its rough handling, although it had made a wonderful new economy record—32.64 miles per gallon (Imperial).

While speed was not the object, the car averaged 19 miles per hour, a record in itself for a car weighing less than 1900 pounds, performing this record without any mechanical trouble. It showed how Triplex Springs protect every part of the car from shock and damage.

This new accomplishment adds another victory to the long list of Overland triumphs.

It proves conclusively that economy is a part of Overland construction.

This wonderful trip again emphasizes in a truly dramatic way the wonderful riding qualities and the extraordinary economy of this great car.

You can see the Made-in-Canada duplicate of this car at our salesrooms.

If you want the car of economy, stamina and comfort, come in and see this car.

You should know what a great automobile can be had for such a moderate price—that will carry you anywhere with economy and comfort.
