GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Laechler
Centre of Happy
Gathering

Celebration at Home in Dorchester, Mass., Last Night, with St. John Relatives and Friends Among Those Present.

(Special to Times.)
Boston, Dec. 31.—Half a century of wedded life is the happy portion of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Laechler of 38 Tonaunda street, Dorchester. There they reside with their son, Carl, and while in the strict sense it may be said that they are in the evening of their lives, the years appear to sit lightly upon them. The senior Mr. Laechler would hardly be recognized as the occupant of International Steamship agent's office in St. John years ago. Age has not "withered" him, for he looks rather than he did then, when a beard his face, but that has given a moustache. It is evident that cheer has not traveled along, but has rather turned it back.

was a family party last night of the golden wedding. A few of the more intimate of the bride and bridegroom of are ago were on hand to assist celebration. A shower of congratulations and good wishes had come in and telegram, and these were ment by a large array of gifts in mbrance of the momentous day in lives.

the company were: Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry, (daughter), and Miss Grace (granddaughter), St. John; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wickwire, daughter and two children, St. John; Dr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Paul of Boston, the rmer a relative on the maternal side; Edward Bennett of Lawrence, a nephew, and wife; Mrs. Margaret Davis of Mrs. Jennie Howe of Boston; Mrs. Mary McKelvey of St. John; idow of John McKelvey, who was a other of Mrs. Laechler, and the lat-er's half brother, Alexander Anderson, St. John, with his wife; Mr. and Mrs. Fenwick McKelvey of St. John, the mer a nephew; Mrs. Grace McKel-ey, wife of John McKelvey's son; Mrs. arles Johnson and husband; Frank met of Boston, a nephew; Benjamin ell and mother, Mrs. Bertha Schell, New York, relatives; Francis F. Barry, son-in-law, and his son, Charles, of John, had planned to come, but were able to get away.

Mr. Laechler is a native of New York and was born in 1848. His wife, so was Miss McKelvey of St. John's four and a half years to her credit. They re married in Portland, Maine, in 1879, and seven children have living, three of whom are living, ere are seven grandchildren. Mr. echer is connected with the Masonic ernity and his wife is proud of her liliation with the Eastern Star. As agent of the International Steam-ship Company in St. John for ten years, ginning in 1890, Mr. Laechler is best gna to the mercantile community. It was considered a risky experi-ent by the directors of the corpora-on, appointing him to the position, same as the office of agent had theretofore been filled by a local man. But e company had faith in him, for he d proved capable and efficient in all s duties and that faith was amply filled in the increased business that s buttressed by confidence that was planted in the patrons. Hon. John yd was the resident director and the mes correspondent is aware of the t that Mr. Boyd, six months after Mr. cher had been installed at the helm t. John, wrote to the president con-ating him on his choice and stat-ing that the agent had won all with e came in contact. e company did not stop there, higher honors for Mr. Laechler, was called to Boston to become il agent. That was in 1900 and he was attached to the freight de-ent of what is now the Eastern ship Company, as he had acquired it insight into that branch early in reer. ical connection with water trans- tion was begun by Mr. Laechler the Maine Steamship Company in Then he went to the Maine and Scotia Steamship Company, which s boats between Portland and Hal- lation, and when it was merged he Eastern he was still one of the e. All of these companies were l, one being the stepping stone to her.
