GEORGIAN DANDIES.

Return to Side Whiskers and Peg-Top Trousers.

(London Standard.)

A determined attempt is being made by a group of young London art students to revive the forgotten fashions of the regency. They at present represent the most forward movement among the "nuts" by virtue of the daring distinctiveness of their costume.

The "uniform" of the Georgian "nut" consists of a "wasted" coat, cut low in front, with a broad collar roll, and large buttons, the waistcoat, is also cut loose and low, showing an expanse of white frilled shirt. The collar is almost hidden by a wide stock-own, usually of a grey and white check, to match grey and white check socks. From the neck is suspended a gold-rimmed eyeglass on a black silk ribbon, half an inch wide, which is carefully arranged to fall across the dazzling white frills of the shirt, to provide contrast. In place of a watch-chain, a heavy fob on a broad black ribbon dangles from the pocket.

But the climax of the scheme lies in the return to peg-top trousers. They are not strapped under the boots, but are very little wider than the ankle. The favorite color among these modern geans is buff, worn with black coat and waistcoat, and check bow and socks. Very thin boots with square toes are de rigueur with this costume. The hair is worn long, but carefully trimmed, and short, close-cropped side whiskers, extend to the level of the base of the ear, complete the reproduction of the fashions of the Regency "buck."

A number of young artists, of whom the leader is a former Slade student, wear this dress nightly at restaurants and dinner clubs in the West End in the hope of restoring variety of color and form to masculine dress.

A young woman collecting rents for a reform tenement association appeared one day with an icing bound over one eye. She explained to the tenant that she had conjunctivitis. That was worse than Greek to Mrs. Kiswalski who insisted on seeing what such a long word might mean. Nothing was said till the afflicted member was rebanded when the Polish sister, wise in experience, remarked with a sigh: "Sorey. But I did not know you was married."

SO LITTLE DONE; SO MUCH YET TO DO

Less Than Eight Per Cent of Canada Yet Famed—Saskatchewan's Position

Saskatoon, Sask., June 9.—The statistical department, at Ottawa, has just issued figures which indicate the vast undeveloped agricultural potentialities of the Dominion. According to these, Canada's total land area is 4,018,645 acres, of which 718 per cent, or 109,177,285 acres are occupied as farm lands. The estimate of possible farm land is given at 440,915,000 acres, or thirty-one per cent of the total. Of course, in the prairie, the percentage of available land is very much higher. For instance, in Saskatchewan's great district, upwards of 90 per cent of the land is suitable for agricultural purposes and merely about ten per cent of it is as yet under the plow.

Facts such as the foregoing are beginning to impress the general public at something akin to their true significance. That we are all dependent upon the farmer has long been one of the most commonplace platitudes which we have iterated and reiterated parrotlike. We have it by heart and repeat it just as a child does some astrute grammatical rule. The real meaning of which he may never comprehend. Now, however, it is different, and Saskatchewan prairies are long to lead the whole Dominion in aggressive effort toward agricultural advancement. This notwithstanding, a marked similar awakening from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Agriculture means more to Saskatchewan than to any other province, for her other natural resources are yet undeveloped. The settlement of her lands and their intelligent operation so as to insure the fullest productivity for the farmer, the foremost and sincerest aim of the people of this province. What Saskatchewan already is with only a negligible fraction of her land under wheat, the pioneering crop, instinctively induces speculation as to what she will have become when, say, merely fifty per cent of her fertile area is being produced not merely grain, but cattle, horses, sheep, swine, poultry and such other agricultural products? The answer may be left with perfect safety to the most fervently optimistic imagination.

Paris, June 9.—"The Day of 24 Hours" was the subject of a report by Dr. Alfred George, president of the Geneva Chamber of Commerce to the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce here today.

Switzerland, he said, was ready to accept the twenty-four hour day, and the Swiss government would authorize it if it did not fear complication from the fact that two of the four neighboring countries—Germany and Austria-Hungary—still insist on the old system of dividing the day into twelve-hour parts, France, Italy, Belgium, Spain and Portugal have adopted the twenty-four hours day.

He urged the need of universal adoption. "It is often difficult," he said, "to fix the time of departure or arrival of letters and telegrams, under the old system and it almost goes without saying that the reading of the time tables and the interests of all transport enterprises would be greatly facilitated by the twenty-four hours' day."

DR. MELVIN'S HOUSE AT WESTFIELD BURNED

LeBaron Jones' Residence Also Caught—Three Alarms in City Last Evening

Fire which is said to have started from a spark from a C. P. R. locomotive destroyed the summer home of Dr. G. G. Melvin at Westfield last evening. A house owned by LeBaron Jones across the road also caught but was extinguished by a party of amateur fire fighters before any great damage was done to it. The house had been rented by Dr. Melvin to John Emmerson but it had not been occupied by him. The house and furniture was valued by Dr. Melvin at $1,000 and was insured for about $800 with Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company. The Jones property was damaged to the extent of about $200 which was covered by insurance.

The fire apparatus was called out twice last night for slight fires. About 6:15 o'clock the North End firemen were called out by an alarm from box 144 for a fire in a chimney at the rear of St. Luke's church. About 7 o'clock an alarm from box 46 brought the apparatus to Melvin's street for a slight fire in the roof of a house owned by Charles Cook.

A barn fire in Acadia street last night brought out the chemical in response to a call from box 145 and the blaze was extinguished before any serious damage had been done.

ENGLISH LITERARY NOTES

(Times Special Correspondence)

London, May 30.—One of London's most famous publishers bought a novel some time ago from a distinguished woman author, and in due course published it and got satisfactory sales on it. He had paid such a large advance on it, however, that he did not make much money on it. Last week he proposed to the author to publish a cheap edition of the book, and named a goodly sum in advance of royalties on it. The author, who was a woman of the good old school, wrote at once to say that she must decline to accept the advance fee, but that she would prefer him to publish the book without paying her anything extra in due course. I do not suppose anyone who knows anything of the publishing business will believe this tale but it is true.

Ever since a suffragette slashed the Sargent portrait of Henry James at the Royal Academy, requests to reproduce the picture have been pouring in upon the famous novelist from publications of all over the world. Up to date, he had been asked to give in detail. This now famous Sargent portrait, which is valued at $8,500 of course, the property of Mr. James, having been presented to him by some 200 of his admirers.

Cabriere d'Annunzio, who is to transfer himself and his probably unique household to London as soon as he can, has a habit here, is as great a lover of animals as he is of extravagant dress, and at one time kept more than forty dogs. Those who have read his novel "The Fire" will remember that one chapter is about them. He keeps horses, too, but one of his most curious pets is a goldfish.

INDIGESTION AND HEADACHES

Arising From Constipation, Cured and Regular Habits Established by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

In the western Provinces, where so many thousands live far from doctors and drug stores, very many rely on Dr. Chase's medicines to cure disease and maintain health and strength. This letter gives some idea of what perfect control Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills exert over the most common ills of life. Mrs. H. K. Haver, farmer's wife, Eastburg, Alta., writes—"For about ten years I suffered from constipation, indigestion, headache and languid feelings. Treatment from two or three doctors afforded only temporary relief, so I turned to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and with most satisfactory results. Headaches have disappeared, regular habits established and general health very much better. Both my husband and I can speak highly of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, as we have both been greatly benefited by them." What Dyspeptics Should Eat

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty foods, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bismuthated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bismuthated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which induces the condition of indigestion, it does more delicate stomach lining, it does more that could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bismuthated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bismuthated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

An Easy Way to Get Fat and be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach by stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creators" or following some foolish physical culture stunt, instead of the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat. Thanks to the remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This master-stroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through its re-generative, constructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can realize the result when you see this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows under your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Your druggist has it, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming indigestion, dyspepsia and general stomach troubles it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

FIELD HUSBANDRY EXPERIMENTS

The experimental farms at Ottawa and the branch farms and stations make field husbandry investigations a very prominent part of their work. For information of those who are interested in the more important results of last season's work over the entire system have been summarized and issued in Bulletin No. 75 of the experimental farms. It takes up the question of rotation, cultivation, fertilizers, rates of seeding, cost of production, weed eradication and other points connected with field agriculture. The information is presented by farms and stations and is, therefore, easily available for study. This bulletin is for free distribution at the publications branch of the department of agriculture at Ottawa.

ON THE ADVICE OF HIS DOCTOR

He Used Dr. Chase's Ointment for Protruding Piles With Splendid Results

Too often a doctor can only think of an operation when asked for a treatment for piles. Some are sufficiently broad-minded to use the most effective treatment available, which is undoubtedly Dr. Chase's Ointment, as was proven in the case referred to in this letter.

Mr. Simon E. Jones, Railway station, Inverness, N. S., writes—"I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable for protruding piles. For three years I suffered from piles, and was advised by a local physician to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. I had tried many treatments in vain, and therefore know which is the best. I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and you are at liberty to use this statement."

The record of cures of every form of piles which stands behind Dr. Chase's Ointment is the strongest guarantee you can have that it will promptly relieve and cure this ailment, even in the most aggravated form. See a box, all druggists.
