BERLIN, March 30.-The people of during the departure of reinforcements for German Southwest Africa. The troops which left Berlin last week were annoyed by a number of half grown people marching with them, and the authorities accordingly deployed a small army of police last night, who attempted to keep the way clear for the military, and arrested the most forward of the hoodlums, but their efforts vere only partly successful. Several hundred persons, including the anticialist criticisms of the army and the colonial policy of the government, hustled the police, even covertly atacking them. These persons reached the entrance to the police station. where they indulged in howling and caterwauling. They climbed the fence and the roof of an outhouse, and There was no physical attack on the
