PARIS, Aug. 18. Julius Strauss and nis wife, of Chicago, while riding an auto here today were arrested and detained for several hours at the police station on a charge of larceny. They were later released at the instance of J. Morton Miller, the American consul. The arrest grew out of the visit to 3 shop where Mrs. Strauss picked up an umbrella worth hardly more than ten francs and then turned and conversed with a child for a few minutes. The storekeeper became suspicious and gave the whole party into the custody of a gendarmes, despite the fact that they had in their possession over $3,500.
