

WILLS OF W. F. BARNHILL AND D. RUSSELL JACK PROBATE

Former Estate $31,950; Latter $16,700 Above Mortgages—Books to Library; Fund for Scholarship and Bequests to Church.

In the Probate Court Saturday the matter of William Frederick Barnhill of Fairville, merchant, was proved. He gives to his wife, Bertha M., all his household effects, including a valuable outfit, absolutely; to Katie Reid, if still in his employ, $100; the rest of his estate he trusts in trust to pay to his wife the income for life; upon her death to divide the same amongst his children share and share alike, namely, two sons, Charles R. and William Ferley, and one daughter, Mary E. Barnhill. Power is given to the trustees to continue his business through the medium of a joint stock company to be formed, and he nominates his wife, his brother-in-law, Edward D. Ferris, now of Brooklyn, and his brother Alexander F. Barnhill, executors. The first two were sworn in as executors. The latter at his own request was not sworn in for the present, leave being reserved for him to be sworn in later. Real estate $15,950, personal estate $16,000; total $31,950. Barnhill, Ewing & Sanford are proctors.

The will of David Russell Jack, insurance agent, was proved. He gives his mahogany plant top desk to Dr. W. Frank Kenny; his mahogany escritoire to Mrs. Frederick P. MacNichol of St. Stephen, his job seal, which was the property of his grandfather, Hon. Hugh Johnston, to Dr. George Johnston of London, England; the rest of his household furniture and personal effects, except his books, he gives to his executors in trust to be divided equally between his two sisters, Marion E. and Louisa M. Jack; his books to the Free Public Library. Grandeur was consumed with flame. The spirit of Jesus is the only empire which a nation's enemies cannot take away from her. It is those men who are seeking to incarnate the human and divine spirit of Moses and of Jesus, who are creating a sovereignty which will still be England, when her yellow leopards have grown weary of wars and the roses in her shield are crimsoned no more with the blood of battles.

The history of the church is glorious, but the men who made it glorious are sleeping with their fathers. Jesus called upon the men of his generation to turn away from the past and take up the living pressing questions of their own day. He insisted on that at last they killed him. "It was said of old time, but I say unto you," declared this Supreme Individualist as he sought to turn men away from rites and customs that were mellow, if not decaying with age, to an everyday religion. He failed with us here, as he failed with us there. We have not Christianized all our activities, private and individual, political and social.

The contrast is equally marked in the industrial sphere. The business man slaves for luxuries and then suffers from over-indulgence in them. He is trained to work and over-worked. That golden age of which they sang must still be placed in the future, and however difficult it may be to dream of it in an age of need, it is a duty which we should still confidently wait through the darkness for the dawn. We have sung of salvation and a risen Lord, and salvation has come, after a fashion, but with it bitterness and disappointment in its train. We have looked for something that would lend purple dignity to tragedy, ease the pang of hunger and give a reaction to those out of the way, and we embraced the message of Saviour and apostles with glad speaking, but today we marvel at their faith, we are blasphemous, as on some cold, grey, windy dawn, after an odorous eve of golden promise, we find ourselves looking with callous wonder, or dull heart, at the things we so madly worshipped.

But the ethics of much of the Christian life that calls itself by his name, is today lower than the jungle. It is not to be denied that the social atmosphere of our time is saturated with vice and lust and spite, and that the moral progress of mankind is retarded by the lack of sterling honesty, unselfish devotion and considerate judgment, noticeable in all social relations. The Church has been the highest light in history. It has been a torch, often a smoky torch, pointing the way to a higher life.

The most strenuous opponent of better tenement-house laws in New York was a church corporation, owner of some of the worst tenements in the city. The vessel that rings out among the slaves of Goshen, "Sirs, ye are brethren," has no significance for many of those who are never weary of finding new names and terms whereby to express their regard for the Man of Nazareth. They are absorbed in the pursuit of things that perish in the using. No vision of a better order of society finds a hospitable reception in their minds.

It is all well for the church to preach sermons and make prayers, to moan the horns of the altar with sacred blood, to chant the litany or elevate the host, but of what use are the multitude of these sacrifices? Jehovah has already declared through one of his greatest prophets that he cannot stomach unbrotherliness and the solemn meetings. All the efforts of the church are making but little impression upon the great mass of the people today. To them the church is simply a great institution, going through the motions, but never producing anything and filled with men who are self-seekers.

Imperialism is not Christianity, but a sort of wild madness running along the veins of England and other nations. It is the drift of the present time, but the drift of only a brief instant. It is the last pathetic convulsion of a dying ideal. The empire of money and truth alone can abide. When the Romans covered the Galileans with pitch, and set them on fire in order to illumine the gardens of the Golden Palace; these human torches scattered sparks of fire whereby the old Roman world with all its rotten ward the payment of the mortgage thereon, if any—otherwise for the general purposes of the church. The legacies are to be paid in full free from succession duty. He directs that the lot in Farnhill belonging to his father's estate shall be put in perpetual care—and he nominates the Eastern Trust Company to be executor and trustee. The company accordingly was so appointed.

The real estate consists of a lot on the southeast corner of Sydney and Princess streets, with brick building thereon, valued at $14,000, subject to a mortgage of $10,000; a lot of land in rear thereof, in Princess street, with wooden buildings thereon, valued at $7,000, mortgaged for $5,000; lot of land on north side of Mecklenburg street with brick building thereon, valued at $4,000, mortgaged for a like sum; an undivided one-third interest in a lot of land on the west side of North Market street, valued at $6,600, mortgaged for $4,000, an undivided interest in a lot of land in Union street with concrete building thereon, valued at $3,000, mortgaged for a like sum; about twenty acres of land on the southeast side of Union street, with wooden buildings thereon, valued at $1,000, mortgaged for $600; an undivided interest in a lot of land in Union street with concrete building thereon, valued at $3,000, mortgaged for a like sum; about twenty acres of land on the southeast side of Union street, with wooden buildings thereon, valued at $8,000, mortgaged for $5,500. Personal property is $3,200. The total value of the above mortgages, is $16,700. Barnhill, Ewing and Sanford are proctors.

TO WED IN THE WEST. Miss Amy Constable, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Constable, of 19 St. John street, left last night on the Maritime Express for Moose Jaw, Sask., where she is shortly to be married to E. C. Kirk, formerly of Dorchester, N. B., but now holding a lucrative position in the western city. Miss Constable's many Moncton friends wish her every success in her new home—Moncton Times.

A NEW ALTAR. A new altar is being placed in St. Gertrude's church. It is pronounced very handsome and the material and workmanship of the finest quality. It will be used on Christmas day for the first time—Carlton Sentinel.
