

THIRD GARRISON CHURCH PARADE HELD YESTERDAY

Soldiers Presented Smart Appearance as they Paraded to Different Churches—Inspiring Sermons by Clergymen, Keynote of which was Fidelity to Call of God and King.

St. John's third garrison church parade was held yesterday. The men gathered at King Square and marched down King street to Market Square where they divided and marched independently to the different houses of worship which they were to attend. The brigadier took the salute at the corner of King and German streets in front of the Canadian Bank of Commerce building. The Composite Battery from Pictou Island led the way followed by the 6th, 11th and 14th. The men made a splendid appearance and their marching was a credit to them. There has been a noticeable improvement in this respect and when the men marched past at the salute yesterday they certainly looked well. After the services they marched back to their different quarters independently.

11th St. Andrew's.

The 11th went to St. Andrew's church where the sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. F. S. Dowling. He said the great question being asked today was, why was a war such as this permitted? This question was being asked of Christianity because Christianity was the only religion which taught that a time was coming when war should cease. The women who had been asked to give their sons were asking the same question and his answer to them would be, "Your son is not your son when duty calls. When he has reached man's estate he must do a man's work, and no mother had a right to stand in the way of her boy doing his duty. Jesus was the great pattern, and He went where duty called, even when going meant death. No one could answer the question as to why the war was permitted, it was one of God's mysteries which time or eternity would reveal, but until that time came the Christian must have faith. Christ set His eyes on the ultimate victory and so was able to bear the things He had to go through. So with this present conflict, when the Allies had won, what would come? A better world to live in, a world where righteousness would prevail and the rights of the weak respected. This was a fact. God was a greater fact, and the cause of right would surely prevail. The band of the 11th rendered a selection during the taking of the offering.

Congregational Church.

The 14th Battalion attended the Congregational church where they listened to an excellent address by the pastor of the church, Rev. Ralph J. Haughton. He based his remarks on the following words from Ecc. 12: 12. "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter; fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man." He said every human life had some mission to fulfill. In order to fulfill that destiny a man must be efficient. The message of the text was, that life was only great and worthy when it was lived under the sway of great ideals. The will was the dominant factor in human life, it was the will which decided what action would be taken in every case.

We were living in an age when pleasure and the glitter of the world tempted men and women to place a low estimate on life; yet there never was a time in the history of the world when real manhood and womanhood meant so much as they did today. Human efficiency was largely the product of the right directing of the will. We were in the midst of a great conflict today with a nation that had trampled her soul in the filth and mire of a brutal militarism of greed and hate. If the British Empire was to win a great victory in this war (and God grant she would), every man must do his part. He urged every man to set before himself a high ideal and strive to attain it. The battalion would not only attain to physical and military efficiency but to moral efficiency as well.

German Street Baptist Church.

The members of the Composite Battery attended German street Baptist church and listened to an eloquent sermon by the Rev. P. S. Porter. He based his remarks on John 11:7. "Let us go into Judea again." Christ and His disciples had gone into Judea to escape the persecutions of the Jews, and a message had been brought to Him that His friend Lazarus was sick and wanted to see Him. His disciples tried to persuade Him not to go, but He felt the call of duty and said He would go. The preacher pointed out that while seemingly there was danger, after all the only safe place was where duty called. Even though Christ lost His life in Judea by going where duty lay, He gained the greatest victory possible. Life could not be counted for a moment when the call of duty was heard. The man who failed was not the man who died, but the one who refused to do his duty when it was brought before him. He urged them all to be true men in every sense of the word and do their whole duty to their God, their country, and to themselves.

WOMAN'S SOCIAL AND NATIONAL MINISTRY

Rev. Dr. J. A. Morison in Forceful Sermon Dealt with Woman's Part in World War.

In his sermon yesterday morning upon "Woman's Social and National Ministry," Rev. Dr. Morison said: "I have sometimes thought that the world was fast becoming far too proud and haughty before this war broke out. Take up for example almost any of those lists of women whose names were at the head of many of those philanthropic enterprises of Europe and America, and for the most part you observe only those names which figured high among the world's social circles."

This war has changed all this in France and England, and it is well. The social perils of humanity are thickening everywhere. The demands upon time and thought and purse grow increasingly. The work that God is calling women to do in the world has never been so vast as it is today, nor the call so insistent. Where are the workers to come from save from the homes in communities of the humble as well as from the homes of their better off sisters.

Almost all of those noble women who ministered to our Saviour were drawn from these lowly classes. One of the great weaknesses of some churches has been the class distinctions and lines of social cleavage that have been drawn by silly people, and it is only in proportion as a church throws upon any such a spirit of uprightness that that church or society may hope to accomplish great and worthy things for Christ and humanity. Here the Protestant church might well take a hint from the Church of Rome, for it is well known that that church has long utilized the zeal of plain working women who hailed from humble homes in communities in which the daughters of princes and peasants are sisters in spirit and in labor.

Since this war began not once or twice the cause of needy and suffering humanity has been helped by the larger and more democratic emphasis that has been placed upon the place and opportunity of all good women, and in the growing conception of practical sisterhood the world owes much to the splendid initiative of the organization which recalled the fact that "behind the dim unknown standeth God with the shadows keeping watch above his own."

How potent is the attitude of hopefulness; let those who watch over the morale of the troops and the censorship of the press testify. Hope inspires effort; hope capitalizes energy. We are seduced by hope—not the hopefulness of temperament, but the resultant of striving up the loins of the mind and viewing life in its entirety. Then, protected by faith and inspired by hope, the Christian warrior must wield the sword of truth. There are heights to be taken and battles to be won—not by might nor by power, but by spirit. Tempted in the battle in the wilderness to depend upon the local and spectacular He countered the attack of half truth by whole truth. This alone can strip life of its shams and advance the line of God's Kingdom.

This equipped the warrior is safe against sudden attack, inspired by an optimism that no hardship can destroy and armed with a weapon against which the hosts of Hell must fall.

Would Wake Up With Smothering Spells.

There is nothing that brings with it such a fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The terrible oppression, choking up and sinking feeling is caused by the heart and nerves being in a deranged condition, and calls for prompt relief.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in all cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, tone up the nervous system, and the trouble which is the cause of so much fear and anxiety becomes a thing of the past. Mrs. Wm. McElwain, Temperance Vale, N.B., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I must say Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are all right. Some years ago I was troubled with smothering spells. In the night I would be sound asleep, but would wake up with my breath all gone, and think I would never get it back again. I was telling a friend of my trouble, and he advised me to use Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. He also gave me a box which I tried, and I had only taken a few of them when I could sleep all night without any trouble. I did not finish the box until some years later, when I felt my trouble coming back. I took the rest and they have cured me entirely."

RECKLESS BRAVERY OF CANADIAN TOMMY

Passenger on Missanabie Tells of a Comrade who Bore a Charmed Life.

Among the returned soldiers who arrived last evening from England on the steamship Missanabie was a young man named Lamey. He had been wounded but did not appear to mind it very much, and said that he was feeling pretty good after he had been patched up.

Private Lamey, who was struck on the leg by a piece of shrapnel and put out of the firing line, is now on his way home to upper Canada. Speaking of the fighting, and when asked if he had seen much of it before he got wounded, he laughed and said: "Do you know that there is nothing else over there in France but fighting. The boys over there are not on a Sunday school picnic, but they are enjoying the fun a great deal more, and for seeing fighting, why, its going on all the time, and it is a great life. Plenty of grub, a wee taste to drink, and enough excitement to keep one full of it for a lifetime. I am only sorry that I got winged and sent home, as I would like to have remained with the bunch until the end of the war. Believe me when that end comes, the head of Fritz's armies will be at the foot of the ladder."

Of course there are some hard sights, but when a fellow is fighting he does not have time to feel sorry about what he sees, he is so busy trying to get a crack at a German that he doesn't stop to watch some poor fellow who is being carried to the rear on a stretcher.

There are some fellows I have seen during the heaviest part of a battle who really do not know the word fear and one who was in the same section with me believes that he is bullet proof. If you could see that chap you would think he had a charmed life. He is an Irishman, full of funny sayings, and always looking for a scrap, and I believe if the officer in charge of us would only let him go he would attempt to walk from our trench over to the Germans and fight them alone.

"I saw him do a trick one day last winter that I will never forget. We were in the trench and it was very cold. One fellow remarked that if we only had some wood we would build a little fire to toast our feet. My friend no sooner heard the remark than he jumped up from cover and vaulted over the trench. Now the Germans were only about a hundred yards away from us well covered and his act looked like deliberate suicide. Before we could get our breath he went in front of our trench a few yards and started in picking up some sticks of wood. At the same time the bullets started com-

Three Bombing Attacks Against British Line But All Were Repulsed

London, April 1.—The following official statement on the campaign on the western front was issued tonight: "There was considerable aerial activity yesterday on both sides. Hostile artillery was active today along the front between the Hohenzollern redoubt and Souchez. We retaliated by shelling the enemy's positions. "Enemy artillery was active about Ypres. The enemy fired mines yesterday and today opposite Fricourt and near the quarries, and in the Hohenzollern redoubt. Little damage was done to our trenches. "Last night there was heavy shelling on both sides about St. Eloi, and the enemy made three bombing attacks against our new position. The attacks were repulsed."

On French Front.

Paris, April 1.—The Germans continued their intense bombardment of the French positions between Avocourt and Malancourt today. A heavy bombardment was also carried out to the east of the Meuse. This was followed by a German attack between Douaumont and Vaux, according to the communication of the French war office, was completely checked.

The text of the statement reads: "In Belgium our artillery bombarded the enemy cantonments at Langemark, northeast of Ypres."

"In the Argonne our batteries were active against the German organizations north of Laharazee and La Fille Mort, and against the enemy camps in the northern part of the Cheppy wood."

"West of the Meuse the bombardment has been intense against our positions between Avocourt and Malancourt."

"To the east of the Meuse a quite violent bombardment was followed, in the course of the afternoon, by a German attack on the ravine between Fort Douaumont and the village of Vaux. The attack was completely stopped by our curtain of fire."

"In the Voivre the artillery activity has been less marked. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report."

The Belgian official communication reads: "Artillery actions on both sides have occurred in the Pervyse and Oostkerke districts, and south of Disme."

HUNS DRIVEN BACK INTO THEIR FLOODED TRENCHES BY RUSSIAN ARTILLERY FIRE

Petrograd, April 1.—The official statement issued today by the Russian war office says: "Western (Russian) front: The Germans continued to bombard the bridgehead at Ikskull and began an attack thereon, but were repulsed by our fire. In the same region rising floods compelled the enemy to emerge on his parapets, but our artillery forced him to return to his trenches. "One of our batteries brought down a German aeroplane which was flying over our positions south of Lievenhoff. The machine was damaged only slightly, and the airman was captured. There were artillery duels and rifle fire in the Dvinsk region. The ice has begun to break up in the Dvina."

"South of the Dvinsk our artillery successfully shelled an enemy train at the station of Tourmont and also enemy detachments which had an outpost near the village of Mochale, north of Widsy. The Germans fled. "On the Widsy front, and around Lake Narocz, there was lively cannonading at several places. In the region of the southeast of Koki the enemy abandoned first-line trenches and retired to the second line. South of the village of Olka the enemy captured momentarily a hill which was immediately retaken by our troops. "During one of the attacks repulsed in the Middle Stripa region we captured 71 prisoners and many rifles."

threw the awful of wood into the trench and turning round faced the Germans and shaking his fist at them said: "Ye missed me that time, didn't ye." He had hardly jumped into our trench again when there was a rain of bullets from a machine gun that fairly tore up the earth on the very spot where a few seconds before he had been standing shaking his fist at the Fritzies.
