TRUSTEES' STATEMENT

To the Ratepayers of School Section No. 2, Mosca:
In view of certain untrue statements, made in last week's Transcript and otherwise circulated by persons outside the section, calculated to give a wrong impression and cause strife among the ratepayers, the board of trustees wish to make the following statement:

No applications were received by this board until the former teacher refused to accept the salary of one thousand dollars paid last year and put in an application for twelve hundred dollars. One other application only was then received, which was for one thousand dollars. No applications were turned down and the latter one for one thousand dollars per year was accepted by the board, which we think will meet with your approval.

The actions of this board have been fair and honorable, and any statements contrary to above are absolutely false.

THE CURE OF RINGWORM

Disagreeable, Contagious Disease of Farm Animals.

The Symptoms Carefully Described—Treatment Carefully Applied—Usually Successful—A Fly Spray—September Notes.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Ringworm is a contagious disease to which all classes of animals, including man, are subject.
Calves and young cattle appear to be more susceptible to the trouble than other animals, but no age renders an animal immune. It is purely a skin disease, and is due to the presence of a vegetable parasite, which is readily capable of being conveyed from one animal to another by direct contact, the hands of the attendant, pulps, stable udders, clothing, harness, saddles, blankets, the contact of one animal with the stalls, etc., of affected animals, etc.

In like manner, carry-combs, brushes, rubbing cloths, etc., that are used on affected animals of any class, if used on other animals, become a fertile cause of infection.
Symptoms.

With any part of the animal may be the seat of the disease, the skin around the eyes and on the face and on the neck and back, appears to be the favorite seat. The first symptom shown is usually aitchiness, which is followed by a slight form of crusting, which soon assumes the appearance of little yellowish scabs of a circular shape the mass scabs forming a circular spot; hence the term "ringworm." A variable number of these circular patches may be noticed on different parts of the body. They are of a yellowish color when fresh, but become lighter in color as they grow older; the hairs become brittle, soon break off, and some become bald. When the disease is at its height, the affected areas become more numerous and the patient apparently suffers acutely from itchy skin, and sometimes rubs against solid objects with such force as to cause bleeding. If a scale is removed and the under surface examined by a magnifying glass, the parasite can be seen.

Treatment.
In order that the spread of the disease may be checked, it is necessary that great care be taken to avoid the consequences of the virus from the diseased to healthy animals. Where practicable, it is well to remove all non-infected animals to non-infected premises. If this cannot be done, the diseased animals should be isolated, and the premises in which they had been kept should be disinfected by thoroughly sweeping and dusting, and then giving a thorough coat of an insecticide, as a hot 10 per cent. of one of the coal tar antiseptics or carbolic acid, or a coat of hot lime wash with 5 per cent. carbolic acid. This precaution is desirable on account of the virus lodging in stalls, bedding, etc., and infecting other animals.

Local treatment consist in moistening the scales with warm water and soap, or sweet oil, removing them in order to expose the unprotected surfaces of the affected areas. It is good practice to burn these scales. An insecticide, as tincture of iodine, or an ointment made of two drams white hellebore mixed with an ounce of vasoline, or, in fact, any reliable non-irritant insecticide, once or twice daily until cured.—J. H. Reed, V.S., O. A. College, Guelph.

A Fly Spray.
A good fly spray can be made from 4½ quarts coal tar dip, 4½ quarts fish oil, 3 quarts coal oil, 3 quarts whale oil, and 1½ quarts of tar. Dissolve 3 lbs. laundry soap in water, add the ingredients of the spray and bring the whole up to 30 gallons with lukewarm soft water. This spray will keep off the flies and prevent the coats of the animals from becoming harsh.

The cows should be sprayed twice a day—in the morning after milking and in the afternoon when in the barn for silage of green feed. Thirty gallons of mixture will spray 40 cows twice a day for ten days.

September Notes.
Pronies should be divided and reset during September or October. Do not forget to lift some of the geraniums, salvia, asters, or other plants in the yard or garden. They will bloom in the window this winter.

A drain tile set over each plant is a good method of blanching celery. Celery for winter storage should not be blanched before putting in the cellar.

Plant tulips in the garden or border the last of September or early October. Tulips, narcissus, daffodils and hyacinths planted now in pots or boxes and put in a cool place will give good flowers next spring.

Place squash on shelves in a dry room near the furnace or in a warm attic room. They must not be in a damp or frosty place. They will stand a great deal of heat and dry air, but little moisture. If you want squash or pumpkins to keep well, handle them carefully so they are not bruised.

Dahlias, canas, gladioli, etc., should be dug and stored after the foliage has been killed by frost. The first part of October is usually the time.

Try to arrange a change of pasture for the sheep. Changing the pasture as frequently as possible, minimizes losses through parasitic diseases.

Green tomatoes may be put under cover when frosty nights come and many will ripen.
Onions keep best in an airy, dry place. A moist cellar is not a good place. They decay quickly.
