

This book, written by a Scout officer who has gained the most coveted decoration of the British Army in the execution of his duty, depicts in simple language the necessity for Scouts to at all times live up to their motto "Be prepared."