The Russian's offered bribes to the officers and crew of the. British sterr er Malacca to try to induce them to me ar they were carrying contraband.

Kincardine ratepayers carried the byaw for $4509 to extend and imprive the Electric light and waterworks system by a majority of 163, only 26 veted against the by-law.

The limb of a tree tied in a perfect knot is one of the interesting exhibits brother! There is a friend that hauge in the Alaskan building at the Werle's to a place like a porous plaster. Thie-Fair. The supposition is that sone native in passing through the fire t does not warp it; neither does it wander tied the not when the tree was a tily off down the road every time the gate sapling. The knot was accidentally is left open. discovered by lumbermen.

M. de Tera, general superintende: t of the railroads of Germany has, it is said, issued orders that all employe s who are not total abstainers will be dicharged at the earlist possible mement. Even moderate drinkers will not be retained. Men with clear brains and steady hands are the only ones who need apply for positions. It is believed that the Kaiser intends to make the German army a temperance organ z., tion by abolishing the sale of alcolide beverages at all canteens.

According to the Ripley Express, Harry Day of Walkerton had a hard day's luck at the Goderich races. Fe bet $50 on Thos. Cain's horse and placed the money in the hands of a visitor from Hamilton. After the race was won, Harry looked for the stak. holder, but he had disappeared. This was in our opinion a peculiar bet. there were three in it. Two bet on the horses and the Hamilton man bet, under his breath of course, that neither the winner nor loser would get any money. The stakeholder won. It was a gambling transaction all round, and the Hamilton man is no more deserving of censure than the other two. Some might be inclined to call the Hamilton man a thief but we would not brand him as such. He simply walked off with the swag he won in a three-corner

Here is a small boy's essay on the fly: "The fli is a little animale that gets in the butter in the good ole summer time. It haz eight legs; 4 to walk on; two to shuffle together an' tickle with. Flies found all over Amerky, but mostly on bald heds. He are the cause of much cussin' by folks what he pesters with his tickling legs. The fli can not be snuck up fer he has eyes in his back rite behind the shoulder blades. The fli loves to get on a bab'y nose and shufflh his feet. It is fun to leave him bee on the bab'y ef yer mother ain't bill, to buy Shoes for the children. eroun' to land on you fer it. The fli is commonly called a fli, but he has another name. The Russ-Jap war, which started out with the promise to produce a sensation every twenty-four hours has do generated into a rather pitiable affair. The gigantic Russia, a power which had the sympathy of scarecly anyone, partly because of its size, partly because of its sins, and partly because it. is regarded as the arch-enemy of liberty and progress, has made so miserable a lowing that something akin to syn: pathy is being aroused in the oulooker. It will be a relief to the rest of the world if Japan develops a little more speed and puts, an end to the business as quickly as possible. So long as the bear was regarded as a real live and ferocious beast, the hunt aroused interest; but since it was discovered that he is merely a tame and almost defenseless creature suffering from a very serious inward trouble, the element of sport has entirely disappeared and the Japanese hunt has developed into an exhibizion of cruelty to a sick cub.

THE MORTGAGE

High water never washes, away the mortgage. It may uproof trees and take the hencoops sailing on down to the next state, but after the floods have subsided the mortgage is still there as firmly as though it had been anchored to the foundation of the earth and then nailed down to the sills of the barn to make it doubly secure.

Cyclones may blow away, the wood. shed, unroof the house or take the haystack on a cook excursion over into an other country, but when the blow is over it is always found that not even a corner of the mortgage is jarred.

Talk about sticking closer than ves do not come in and steal it, the sun

For a good, practical recipe for losing a mortgage, men would pay most any sum; but, try their best, they simply can't.

Itis estimated that strikes have cost Colorado $23,036,000 during the last sixteen weeks. Labor wars are as costly as the kind Russia and Japan are waging.

Mr. John Webster, of Ashfield, last pring lost a gander and two goese. It was thought they had been carried under the ice by the flood in the creek and were given up as dead. Quite recently, however, the chaff house was being cleaned out, the three birds were found underneath the straw, alive and well, after their three months fast without either food or water.
