The visitors fell off considerably during the evening, Altogether 6,756 passed through the turnstiles, of which num ber 5,300 entered before six o'clock. At that hour it looked as if the attendance would be a record breaker. Th total attendance to date is 14,672 and s about 3,000 short of the like number of days last year. The heavy rain of Friday accounts for much of the fall ng off. The association feels that with fine weather the record of the last exhibition will be passed. > What might possibly be the liminary to the end of the strike took place on Saturday afternoon when Premier Murray and Messrs. Kendall and Gillis, local members met a committee of men and discussed the whole situation. At the close of the conference Premier Murray stated that nothing had been suggested towards ending the strike and that the whole meeting had been simply to talk over the situation. No proposals of any kind had been submitted and he had not been asked to interfere in any way. Unless the strike comes to an end very soon the prospects for the men now on strike are about as bad as they can possibly be. The allowance given for food is just sufficient for their actual wants. Some of the people are getting along all right on this, but others are not, and tales of little children coming camps of the troops and asking for food are heard very frequently. The situation of these families who have been evicted from their homes is also very bad. Some of them have gone into other houses, but many have been forced to take barns or any kind of a shack. What will happen to these cople if they are in the same situation in mid-winter is a problem that is looming up very formidably now.

The fuel question is also one which is assuming much importance. Fence poles, boards, and, in fact, anything that will burn are being used now and the main occupation of many of the men is going to the woods to cut down fire wood. There is not very much hardwood in Cape Breton and spruce s the main fuel used now. When the strike was called early in

On their arrival at Perth they went immediately to C. L. Olmstead's store and tried to pass the cheques, but were refused. Then they went to the Bank of Montreal in Andover. They had some difficulty over the second cheque, but the teller concluded it was simply a mis-spelling of the name, so handed over the money.

hour later Mr. Moore telephoned the bank of the robbery. Constable McCrea was notified and with Michael McCluskey, the teller started in hot pursuit on the road reading to Fort Fairfield. They succeeded in overtaking the pair just eighty rods from the boundary line. The Russian said he knew nothing of the matter and when told of it was determined to give the Polander a thrashing for his conduct. The Polander was handcuffed and searched. The search revealed the fifty-five dollars hidden in the bottom of his sock. He was brought to Andover and lodged in jail to await his hearing before Justice McQuarrie on this morinne.
